Graphic Stories Of World's Greatest Airship Disaster Told By Survivors Of The Big ZR-2

British Flight Commander, Among The Rescued Tells Of Sudden Crack Of Girders And Explosion In Mid-Air. American Survivor Recounts Rescue From A Watery Grave

Hull, Eng., Aug. 25.—The most graphic stories of the greatest disaster in the history of the air, when the ZR-2, world's largest dirigible, exploded, burst in two and fell flaming into the river Humber, carrying 16 Americans and 27 British to their death, were told to the United Press today by Flight Lt. A. H. Wann, commander of the airship, and Norman O. Walker, the only American saved.

"The whole thing happened in five seconds," Flight Lt. Wann, lying in Hull hospital, said. "My ship was running beautifully at 60 knots as we swung over Hull. Our tests were nearly finished and we hoped to be down soon. I had just signalled the speed be reduced fifty knots when I suddenly heard a terriffic crack. I believe that several girders must have broken. The ship buckled and the explosion followed."

The cause of the explosion will probably never be known, the commander said.

American Survivor Tells Story.

Norman Walker, of Commerce, Tex., the only American saved, told the United Press "No one will ever have a clear idea of just what happened. I was with two Britishers at the extreme tail of the ZR-2. When the explosion shook the ship and she broke in two, our half fell tail downward.

Floated Downward.

"The three of us hung on and we floated down toward mid river almost like a big bird settling onto the water. It was almost like having a parachute. I looked down, and saw the water rushing up at us and when we were about thirty feet from the surface I let go and dropped. I thought I would never come up but when I did there were tugs and boats already speeding to rescue work. The ship could scarcely have been in the water thirty seconds before they were on the job.

"I feel fine personally. I smoked a cigarette immediately after they pulled me out."

Thousands were gathered on the river front at dawn watching the search for bodies.

The ZR-2 was invisible, both halves being completely covered by the tide Preliminary work of salvage was under way. The searching parties worked all night lest there should still be someone alive in the wreckage.

Federal Troops Sought To Stop March Of Miners Army

Washington, D. C., Aug. 25.—An emergency appeal was made to the War Department today by Governor Morgan, of West Virginia, for 1,000 Federal troops to keep 5,000 armed miners from entering Mingo county and Logan county mine fields.

Miners' Army on March

Charleston, W. Va., Aug. 25.—5000 miners, many of them armed, were reported this afternoon to be marching from Marmet, 12 miles east of here toward the Mingo and Logan county mine fields in protest of martial law there.

Reports of the Governor's office said the miners were marching like a veritable army, commandeering stores as they advance. Some were said to be walking and some riding in automobiles. Advices from Logan said a citizen's army of 500 were arming to resist their advance into that county, and an armed clash is feared.

Citizens who telephone state authorities gave them reports of the most sensational character regarding the march. There were rumors the miners had seized railway trains and that where resistance was shown the miners opened fire.

4000 Reach Boone County

4000 miners, marching in protest were reported to have reached Racine, Boone county, according to information received here. It is reported that many of the miners were accidentally killed by the fire of their own guards while in camp at Marmet.

Ten or twelve other holes will be sunk soon.

SEVERAL POSTAL JOBS IN COUNTY MAY BE OPEN

Civil Service Commission Will Hold Examinations For DuBois, Osceola Mills And Winburne Postmasterships.

The Civil Service Commission has been requested by the Postoffice Department to hold examinations of applicants for appointment as postmaster at the following places in Clearfield County:

DuBois, Osceola Mills and Winburne.

It is the policy of the new administration to allow postmasters serving one term to remain unmolested until their time expires, but in the case of all officers who have had their noses in the public feed bag for eight years, or two terms, they will "turn the rascals out," or at least make them stand a competitive examination if they expect to hang onto the job any longer.

The postmasters at the points affected by this order, all of whom have served two terms are. DuBois, Con Allen; Osceola, A. E. Brown; Winburne, Max Crain.

CANADIAN VESSEL SINKS OFF MOUTH OF COLUMBIA RIVER–LIFEBOAT IS MISSING

Seattle, Washington, August 25.—Her hold filling with water from some unknown cause, the Canadian Government Steamer, "Canadian Importer," sank today off the Washington Coast, according to wireless reports received here. Part of the wrecked vessel's crew was taken on board the "Cardova," which rushed to the rescue in response to wireless calls for help.

Death List May Reach Forty.

San Francisco, California, August 25.—It is feared that a death list as high as forty may result from the sinking of the steamer 625 miles southwest of the Columbia River. Word was received here that the rescuing ship, "Cardova," carrying part of the crew, had left the scene of the wreck and was making for Portland.

A previous dispatch to the Harbor Commission stated one of the lifeboats believed to have contained forty persons, was still missing.

DOLLAR DAY RUSH IS EXPECTED TO FILL THE CLEARFIELD STORES

Merchants Making Every Preparation To Take Care Of Big Crowd Expected Here On Friday

Clearfield's LIVE merchants are all set for Dollar Day, which is scheduled for tomorrow. Shelves and counters in the different stores are bulging over with bargains while the different show windows contain exhibits or samples of some of the many good things to be found inside.

This Dollar Day is going to be a record breaker in every way, if one is to judge from surface indications. During the past few years the dollar has not had very much purchasing value, but drop into any of Clearfield's live stores tomorrow and see what it is possible to purchase now with one dollar. It will be a pleasant surprise to all bargain hunters.

Clearfield merchants never made such preparations for any previous sale event as have been made for this semi annual Dollar Day and you will profit thereby by reading the different advertisements in The Progress, making mental note of the articles which you need and then be on hand early to avoid the rush when the doors open for business Friday morning.

The Progress guarantees in every way this Dollar Day and the merchandise bargains offered by the different merchants participating herein.

In addition to the list of merchants published in The Progress last evening the following will enter into the Dollar Day spirit.

Fred A. Dale and the Reliable store.

The new Fullington Bus Company's schedule is going to be particularly advantageous for the folks from Woodland, Wallaceton, Bigler and Blue Ball as the new schedule will enable prospective shoppers to come to this city.

Mr. Fullington assures the Progress man that if traffic warrants he will put on extra busses and thus take care of the vast crowds that are expected here tomorrow.

The bus line to Curwensville also offers an additional mode of conveyance to augument the train service between this city and Curwensville.

A CORRECTION

In the Dollar Day advertisement of the A. W. Leonardson Co., there appears an item, "Any trimmed hat in the store on Dollar Day at $1". This should read "Any Spring and summemr hat in the Store $1. In another place it is advertised, "4 pairs of 25 cent hose for $1" These are a regular 35 cent hose.

In the advertisement of Leitzinger Bros. there appears an item offering Children's Gingham Aprons at a special price. This should have read "Children's Gingham DRESSES," a still greater offer than the error made it appear.

SOLDIER MEMORIAL COMMITTEE HAS BEEN APPOINTED

Public Minded Citizens Believe Time Has Come To Revive Project.

More than a year ago a meeting was held in Clearfield for the purpose of inaugurating a movement looking to the building of a suitable memorial to commemorate the services of Clearfield county's soldiers, sailors and Marines in the world war.

At this meeting Judge Singleton Bell was empowered to appoint a committee of representative citizens to handle such a project. Judge Bell recently made this appointment as his statement given below will show:

"Some time ago preliminary steps were taken looking toward the construction of a Memorial which should properly commemorate the services and sacrifices of those who served in the World War, but for various reasons it was felt best to wait for a time when no other project would divide public interest That time has arrived and to bring about definite action it is advisable that a representative committee be appointed to consider the subject and take such further steps as they may decide upon.

To this end the following persons are requested to act as such committee and to meet at the call of the chairman.

Fred B. Kerr, chairman. of the American Legion; John M. Chase of the Borough Officers; M. E. Farrell, of the County officers,; Mrs. Geo B. Reed, Mrs. H. Clark Thayer, Mrs. S. J. CLOSING OF PLANT DISEASE EXPERIMENTAL LABORATORY WILL BE FELT BY FARMERS

Pennsylvania farmers in general, and vegetable growers in particular, will directly feel a great loss through the enforced closing of the insect and plant disease experimental laboratory established in 1918 at Girard, Erie county, by the Pennsylvania State College. According to County Agent Sterrett, the college failed to receive sufficient funds from the State for agricultural research work, and increased costs make it necessary to relieve the two specialists at Girard on October 1st, thereby removing a source of valuable information to Pennsylvania agriculture.

Instead of cutting down on this field laboratory work, the county agent declares that the college should by all means be allowed to expand its research to every general soil type and climatic condition in the State. In the three years that work has been under way at Girard, sufficient discoveries have been made to warrant continued effort. J. H. Muncie, the pathologist there, has found the leaf spot of tomato, a serious disease in that section, can be controlled by copper sprays, such as Bordeaux mixture. An unnamed bacterial disease last year reduced the tomato crop in Erie county twenty-five per cent. It has been studied for two years but the work is not yet completed and will have to be dropped. Canker and wilt disease investigations will also be cut off in the middle of experiments by their control. Farmers will continue to loose valuable crops until the State provides for the re-opening of the laboratory, and the resumption of this work.

Studies of insect pests that annually cause great losses must be dropped, the county agent continues. J. R. Eyer, the entomologist, has discovered means for the control of the onion root maggot, thereby permitting growers to plan large plantings which they were unable to do before, due to the certainty of great loss. Control of potato leaf hoppers in two years has saved farmers great destruction and given increased tuber production. Plans for investigations of state-wide importance were under-way, but will have to be abandoned for the lack of a few thousand dollars.

PASTURE IMPROVEMENT

Some valuable information relative to pasture improvement has come to County Agent Sterrett from extension specialists at the Pennsylvania State College who have just completed work on a bulletin on pasture experiments with the aid of county extension representatives. Excellent results have been obtained from the use of lime, acid phosphate and clover seed.

The permanent pasture problem is at times a most difficult one, but sowing fresh seed without improving the fertility is generally useless. Manure, when available, gives a good return on pastures; lime, phosphate or manure may be applied either in spring or fall, as most convenient. If seed is sown during the summer, it should be harrowed in.

In the course of the demonstration, some almost worthless hill pastures in Green county were treated with 1200 pounds of hydrated lime, or a ton of ground limestone per acre applied in the spring of 1920, with 300 pounds of acid phosphate. Clover and grass seed were sown, a good crop of clover hay was cut last fall and there is a good stand of clover and grass this Summer. In other instances lime and phosphate were put on sods that were constantly pastured, and the white clover has come in and thickened up wonderfully. Livestock show a great preference for the treated plots, practically doubled in productivity. Fertilized and lime treatment for pastures is recommended by the county agent at least once in five years.

"YALLER" DOGS WILL HOWL AT TYRONE SATURDAY NIGHT

The biggest thing on the schedule over Blair county way for some time to come is the gathering of the Association of Yellow Dogs of Blair county which will be held at Tyrone on Saturday evening, Aug. 29th, when it is expected that more than one thousand purps of various degrees will foregather around the ancient relic of the tribe for the annual "bone gnaw."

In speaking of the affair last night's Altoona Mirror says:

"Polysyllabic profundity, pompous prolixity, pistacious vacuity and vaniloquent vapidity will be sedulously avoided and an evening of rare entertainment and peaceful gnawing will feature the evening with the out casts of northern Blair as hosts.

So much pleasure is gained by gathering around the ancient relic that many notables from other sections of the state will be present. Judge Singleton Bell, of Clearfield, and Professor Grant Norris of Curwensville have been lured back to the county for a friendly growl and Attorney Robert W. Smith, of Hollidaysburg and Rev. A. C. Van Saun, of East Freedom have expressed their intentions of being present to discuss some of the important phases of dogdom."

Indians Have Curious Numeration.

The Indians of Guiana have a curious system of numeration. They count by the hand and its four fingers. Thus, when they reach five, instead of saying so, they call it a "hand." Six is therefore a "hand and first finger"; seven, a "hand and second finger." Ten is "two hands." But 20, instead of being "four hands," is a "man." Forty is "two men," and thus they go on by twenties. Forty-six is expressed as "two men, a hand and first finger."

The Romance of the Pearl.

The romance which surrounds the pearl is as old as history. Cleopatra dissolved and swallowed a pearl valued at $400,000 in honor of Antony. Sir Thomas Gresham dining with Queen Elizabeth, dissolved a pearl worth $50,000 and drank it.

WHY PROHIBITION DOES NOT PROHIBIT

Whiskey is being sold today across 2,500 bars in Chicago, in addition to the vast amount that is being peddled in bottles, jugs and gasoline cans, by waiters, taxi drivers, chauffeurs, porters—a great motley army of retail bootleggers.

An analysis of the Chicago "wet" situation, based on direct investigation and interviewes with John Kjellander the new Federal Prohibition Director for Illinois, shows three outstanding obstacles in the way of an immediate more rigid enforcement of the Volstead law.

First is the clogged condition of the courts, in which 2,000 bootlegging cases are pending. When new arrests are made, the offenders are released on bond, and frequently continue their criminal operations pending the indefinite date of trial.

Second is the limited field force of the Federal Prohibition office there. The director has only seventeen men on his Chicago "blotter squad" and thirty-nine men in the whole State

Third is the red tape surrounding the procedure by which arrests can be made.

Local authorities in Clearfield county are doing more to curb illegal liquor making and selling than all the Prohibition enforcement officers the State over, judging from the returns thus far.

One reply received to the request stated the matter of rates would be left to the Interstate Commerce Commission, which would "undoubtedly order a general reduction in due time."

MANAGER DRIGGS OPENS SEASON WITH MAMMOTH MINSTREL OFFERING

Manager Driggs of the Driggs Theatre today officially opened the Fall and Winter theatrical season in Clearfield by presenting to the theatre going public a good old fashioned minstrel show dressed up in new frills—Gus Hill's and Honey Boy Evans' Minstrels.

Each of these shows, when working alone in former years had a wide following, and combined they are said to present a showing second to none in the minstrelsy world.

The big show arrived here from Altoona this morning. At noon they paraded the down town and business sections of the city, and gave a concert at the Court house corner.

Manager Williams, who is travelling with the minstrel men here, said he is convinced he has as fine a bunch of comedians as a manager could want—if he is satisfied it must be taken as an indication it is a good show.

After tonight's performance they leave for Lock Haven, ending up the week there and then going to Scranton for a two day run.

GOOD ROADS IN DEMAND

The recent announcement that concrete laying on the Woodland-Blue Ball State Road had been completed, was welcome news to many who have been obliged to use that route in the past few years. Time was, not many years ago, when the existing detour road would have been considered an excellent one, but the motor car's universality seems to have revolutionized the demand for better roads. Half the enjoyment of a long motor trip is stolen if even a comparatively short stretch of bad road is encountered.

The people of this county are foremost in their demands for good roads. Only last week a local constable served notice on a road supervisor that steps be taken at once to repair a township road or legal action would ensue. Clearfield county has a considerable share of the state's improved highways, but there is room for vast improvement. The people of this county have backed to the limit, by their actions at the polls, moves to better existing road systems. It is to be hoped there will be no let-up until every community in the county is linked together with a chain of improved roads, ones that will really stand up under traffic and not be in need of constant repair. The state has made arrangements to take care of the main highways. It is up to the county and townships to do the rest.

With the coming of the primaries voters in some districts will be asked to re-consider road bond issues which were declared void due to legal phraseology. As soon as these matters are cleared up the Commissioners will be able to lay plans for the betterment of county highways, and have everything in readiness to get a flying start on the work next spring, it is hoped.

When completed, such a highway system as is contemplated in Clearfield county will promote business by making it far easier for those residing in the outlying districts to bring their produce to market and for city shopkeepers to deliver their goods in the country. It will put the farmer in the same relative buying position as his city brother, and will increase the value of lands tapped by these roads.

Good roads, in short, are as a rule worth much more than they cost, and the people are showing good business judgment in demanding them.

BRITAIN'S BROKEN BLIMP
(Pittsburgh Dispatch)

Whether the disaster to the gigantic blimp ZR-2 will forbid further attempts to make practical such huge ships of the air, is questionable, not withstanding the loss in money and the greater loss in life among the mixed crew of British and Americans aboard. Builders of war machinery have gone to the furthest limits in size, although warned from time to time by results similar to that which overtook the ZR-2 on her trial trip. Former "largest ever built" dirigibles have broken and given other evidences of their failure to safely construct gas bags of extraordinary dimensions for air service. The loss of the latest largest "air ship" ever assembled is simply corroborative evidence that the limit in hughness has been exceeded.

Warning of the irremediable weakness of the ZR-2 was given a week ago by a London newspaper, which declared that the secret could no longer be kept in view of the arrival of the American crew to take her to America across the Atlantic. The imperative trial before delivery to the Yankee buyer, this newspaper explained, had been delayed because the big machine was unfitted to go into the air because of fatal construction defects. It was asserted openly that serious doubt existed if the ZR-2 could go high into the air and if she did, whether the gigantic gas tank could be brought back to earth. Bent girders and strained lattice work were mentioned specifically as the vital weakness of the machine, since engine trouble need not necessarily endanger ship or crew.

While official technical investigation will be awaited for the exact facts and final judgment suspended, the breaking in two of the big ship seems to be presumptive testimony that the London paper knew what it was talking about. Now the question forces itself in for recognition and answer whether structural defects such as bent girders and strained lattice work can be escaped in assembling an air craft of such proportions. The big blimp is gradually eliminating itself as a factor of reliability in warfare. We have escaped getting a huge "lemon," but at the cost of American lives worth more than all the world-beating dirigibles that ever will be built.

Now that the government of Panama has assured the United States it will not start things popping in Central America, the advocates of war can put their swords back in their little felt cases and the 400 Marines, sent rushing to the scene, can breath a little easier. It's easy enough to start a war, but even a little war where only 400 of our soldiers are involved, costs money.

The Prohibition Enforcement agents claim they have a rum-running armada bottled up in Chesapeake Bay. The rum runners evidently have something better than that bottled up.

Even the boxing promoters in New York State have taken to lobbying. Their latest achievement is a rule by the State Boxing Commission that scrappers will have to take their chance on the gate receipts—promoters are no longer permitted to offer guarantees. It's a tough life us scrappers lead. This rule has no effect on editors, however. At least, we've never received any guarantee on any of our scraps. We just have to take what's coming to us, or back water.

Francesco Petrarch.

It is said that the great Italian poet, Francesco Petrarch, died, almost exactly to the day, 70 years after his birth. Took Everything in Sight.

A certain darkey "extra" appeared on the Hal. E. Roach "lot" one morning a picture of woe, and he insisted upon telling his "misery" to that popular film actor, Harold Lloyd.

OSCEOLA STEELERS TAKE GAME FROM CLEARFIELD TEAM

Two Three Baggers, Coupled With Home Run That Clears The Bases, Prove Too Much Against Terriers.

"Fighting Jack" Onslow and his Osceola Steelers were with us again yesterday afternoon and a real baseball game was the result. It was a red-hot, sizzling contest, the Steelers coming from behind in the sixth and winning the game when they put over seven runs. The final tally was Osceola, 8; Clearfield, 6.

Hard One To Lose.

It goes like pulling teeth to lose a game to the Osceola scrappers, but this one was doubly hard to let go of for the reason that we should have won it hands down. The breaks were all against us from start to finish, not excepting those made by the umpire.

One Bad Inning For Taylor.

Lefty Taylor pitched great ball for our side in all but one of the nine innings, but this one inning was a whole ball game. After holding the enemy scoreless to the sixth, Knetzer opened that fruitful session with a fly to right which Russell got under at the edge of the track and as he reached for the ball he fell over the bank to the track and the hit which should have been an out went for three bases. Tyson then slammed one to the track in right and Knetzer counted. Morpeth's single scored Tyson. Edmons walked. Shaw followed with a single and on Gill's bunt Taylor fell in fielding it and threw wild to first, filling the bases. Pearce then got Taylor out of the hole by poling the ball out of the lot, four more runs coming across the plate on the homer. Onslow then hit to Getz and was out at first, while Taylor fanned Rudolph and Knetzer.

The visitors annexed another run when Zerfluh fielded Tyson's hit to third and threw wild to first, allowing Tyson to get to second. He advanced to third on Morpeth's out and scored on Edmonson's sacrifice fly.

Knetzer Gets Bumps.

The mighty Knetzer, who has been having some fun with our sluggers, got his bumps in this game and was forced to give way to Taylor in the seventh inning, after fourteen hits and five runs had been garnered off him.

Hoffman's single and Russell's three bagger scored a run in the second. Another was added in the fourth on singles by Harris and Hoffman and a double by Zerfluh. Three were put over in the sixth when Harris singled and Hoffman doubled and then Crossin, Zerfluh, Russell and Spiers singled in a row.

Taylor Takes Up Battle.

That ended Knetzer and Manager Onslow sent Taylor to the mound in the seventh. After Getz had fanned Harris singled and went to third on Hoffman's single, from where he tallied on Crossin's sacrifice fly to second. That ended our run getting, although things looked dark for Taylor in the ninth when, after Hoffman had flied out to right Crossin and Zerfluh singled in succession, but Russell hit into a double play and the "dog was dead."

THIS TIME LAST YEAR

The Red Sox finished series with the Indians by winning four out of five games.

Kirchner pitched his first game for the Cards, and was beaten by the Giants.

Alexander was bumped for twelve singles, but the Braves got only two runs.

The Blossburg Champs, with a record of but seven defeats in 35 games will be here tomorrow.

Picked Up Along Third Base Line

THE SIXTH INNING

How Right Fielder Russell must have felt in the fatal sixth yesterday when three-baggers and home runs began to rain over the race track. "Up and Over" was the motto of the Steelers in this frame.

The House of David ball club will play Janesville at the latter place on Sunday next. The House of David team represents a religious sect out near Battle Creek Mich, which does not believe in using razor or scissors and the players cavort about the ball field in flowing hair and whiskers. They are fine players and have been many of the strong independent teams throughout the country.

The Terriers go to Indiana Saturday afternoon for a game with Rube Hagerty's much strengthened Indiana team.

Manager Hoffman may have been with Napoleon on his march on Mossow as some envious Philipsburgh fans allege, but he can sure sack that "al apple." He laced out four real bingles yesterday.

The Blossburg champions of the Northern Tier counties will meet the locals at the driving park Friday afternoon. Blossburg is rated as the fastest independent team in the northern part of the State and the game should be a good one.

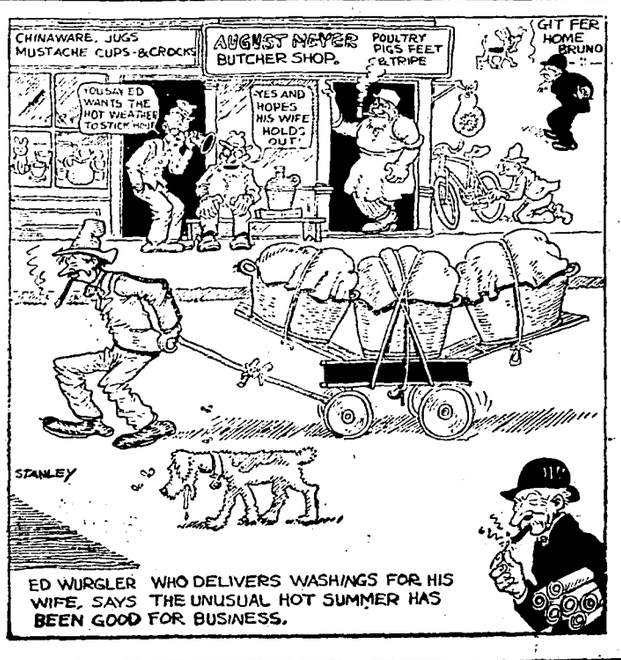

The bleachers had an enjoyable afternoon razzing Jack Onslow, but that was only half of the battle, the scrappy Jack is some hand with the conversation himself.

Callahan's one-handed running catch in right centre in the Mt. Union game was a peach and will not be equalled on any field in many a moon.

Getz at second was a real stone-wall on the defense yesterday.

Russell was the businest man in town in that fatal sixth.

Spiers certainly hit the ball hard yesterday, but had the hardest kind of hard luck. His titanic smash to right in the eighth which would have won the game went over the fence foul by inches only.

BASE BALL SUNDAY

Janesville

VS

The House Of David

The House of David is a barnstorming ball team that puts up a real article of baseball. They will prove a foe worthy of Janesville's best efforts.

NEWS OF OUR NEIGHBORS

CURWENSVILLE

D. C. Scott, of Detroit, Mich., came in on Tuesday and expects to spend some time with friends near town.

Prof. Norris, who will have charge of the borough schools for the term of 1921-22, has been in town several days this week arranging details for the opening week. He is thoroughly conversant with advanced high school work, which is an indication that the schools will be placed on a higher educational plane than they have been enjoying for the past two or three years. Some few changes will be made in the manner of instruction in some of the grade departments from last term, which will be a great help to the pupils.

Rev. and Mrs. Collins, who have been away from town enjoying a two weeks' vacation, arrived home last evening having been greatly benefited by their play hours and visit among friends in the East. The usual church services will be held on Sunday, morning and evening.

Persons interested in the Plainview cemetery (known by many as the Quaker graveyard) located on the Hartzfield farm two miles from town, have had men at work and had that burial field put in some sort of presentable shape, by having grass, weeds and brush removed and other work done. This is one of the oldest cemeteries in this end of the county. A charter has been issued for it to persons who will see that it is kept in some kind of shape from now on.

Captain Crawford, whose specialty is selling bonds, interviewed some of Curwensville's financiers this week. He represents the firm of Frederick Pierce & Co., New York.

Today is Fruit Hill picnic anniversary and in consequence a number of Curwensville folks took a day off and hied themselves to that vicinity for a day of amusement and pleasure. The attendance was large and all were made to feel "to hum."

Blain City came to Curwensville today and met the American Legion team on Athletic grounds. Tuesday afternoon the Woodland club was here and suffered defeat by a score of 11 to 1.

Monday the Stronach brick yard started to work a six day turn in full. From a reliable source it was learned this yard would now continue to operate in full to the end of the year at least.

In enumerating the list of nominations for borough office in Wednesday's letter, we inadvertently neglected to mention that Charles Sawtelle and Bert Woodward, Republicans, and Ed. Gallaher, Democrat, will appear on the ballot as aspirants for the tax collectorship.

John Farley and son, John Farley, Jr., came from their home in Ashland, O., Tuesday to Curwensville in an auto and will visit at the home of Frank Farley for several days. It is about forty odd years since the first named gentleman left this section for the West.

A corn roast was held at the Pee Wee's Nest Tuesday evening by a group of young people. All claim a good time.

She is survived by four daughters, Mrs. T. S. Adams and Miss Lois Passmore, of Clearfield; Mrs. James Ogden, of Akron, Ohio, and Dora, married and living in Kansas City.

Mrs. Passmore was a devout Christian woman and a lifelong member of the Methodist Episcopal church. Funeral services will be held at the Adams home at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon and interment will be made in Centre cemetery.

Nautical Terms.

Gross tonnage is obtained by dividing the whole cubical capacity of a ship by 100, that many English cubic feet representing a ton. Net tonnage is the gross tonnage less deduction for machinery, crew and other spaces not used for passengers or cargo. Dead-weight tonnage or tonnage [illegible] is the number of tons which can be carried in the holds when the vessel is charged to the load-water line. Displacement tonnage used with reference to warships is the actual weight of sea water displaced by the vessel when charged with all its weight to the load-water line.

Improvement Always Mutual.

No improvement that takes place in either of the sexes, can be confined to itself; each is a universal mirror to each; and the respective refinement of the one will be in reciprocal proportion to the polish of the other. —Colton.

LIPTON WILL HAVE TO WAIT YEARS TO LIFT CUP

By HENRY L. FARRELL
(United Press Staff Correspondent.)

New York, Aug. 25.—It will be several years before Sir Thomas Lipton gets another chance for America's cup—if he wants one.

Recent activities of the titled tea king in England indicate that he has not given up the ambition of his life to own the fastest yacht in the world, and that he may challenge the New York Yacht Club for another race next summer.

In a period when money is not just the loosest thing on the market, a million-dollar yacht race is not the best thing to get back to normalcy, and for that reason the New York Yacht Club probably will discourage any attempt for another race next year, according to opinion prevalent here.

The yacht club speaks officially and it cannot discuss a challenge until it has been received, but, nevertheless, prominent members of the club have expressed the individual opinion that the cup will be kept on the shelf for at least two more years.

Lipton is said to be considering plans now for another addition to the Shamrock family of challengers. When he failed in his million-dollar venture to beat Resolute last summer and win the cup, it was thought that he would be through. But he is persistent.

Two of his Shamrocks are now high and dry at Jacob's shipyard, City Island. They will remain there, however, it is believed, and a new Shamrock will be built and sailed over to compete in the next race.

For the same reason that an American Cup race is not probable in 1922, it is logical to believe that King Albert's Cup race across the Atlantic will not be on the 1922 program.

Attempts to stage the race this summer from Sandy Hook to Ostend, received a polite and courteous frown from American yachtsmen, who took the stand that the race would cost too much money and the investment of such big sums in a pure sporting event would not tend to bring the country back to its feet.

Carfare and Interest.

The story goes that Johns Hopkins, the founder of the university that bears his name, was accustomed even when of venerable years and more or less infirm of body to walk to his office. Questioned by a friend as to why he did this, he replied: "I never forget that a carfare represents an entire year's interest on a dollar. The interest on a dollar is worth saving."

LEATHER BELTING

There is no question that high grade leather is the best belting for some drives. During the war and for some time afterward the cost of leather products was so excessive that we didn't attempt to sell leather belting where anything else could be used.

Leather is now one of the materials on which there has been real price reduction. As a result leather belting is back almost to pre-war figures and again deservees consideration from a price as well as a quality standpoint.

We have renewed our stocks and can give you the very highest grade at surprisingly low cost. We also have leather belt dressing.

SO WEAK SO NERVOUS

How Miserable This Woman Was Until She Took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Toomsboro, Ga.—"I suffered terribly with backache and headache all the time, was so weak and nervous I didn't know what to do, and could not do my work. My trouble was deficient and irregular periods. I read in the papers what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had done for others and decided to give it a trial. I got good results from its use so that I am now able to do my work. I recommend your Vegetable Compound to my friends who have troubles similar to mine and you may use these facts as a testimonial."—Mrs. C. F. PHILLIPS, Toomsboro, Ga.

Weak, nervous women make unhappy homes, their condition irritates both husband and children. It has been said that nine-tenths of the nervous prostration, nervous despondency, "the blues," irritability and backache arise from some displacement or derangement of a woman's system. Mrs. Phillips' letter clearly shows that no other remedy is so successful in overcoming this condition as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

SWIMS RIVER TO GET FUGITIVES

Sheriff Makes Sensational Capture of Two Men Charged With Murder.

ARE CAUGHT IN TRAP

Carrying Revolver in His Teeth Deputy Swims Stream and Lands Suspects After Battle in Which Many Shots Are Exchanged.

Cheyenne, Wyo.—Pursued to an island in the middle of the North Platte river, with armed posses waiting on either bank of the stream, Abraham Sauisito and Felipe Blanco, wanted here for the murder of Joe Cordova, were driven from their hiding place by an undersheriff, who swam the river with a six-shooter, and were captured after a battle.

The two men were brought back here to face the charge of murder. They are alleged to have shot Cordova to death during an altercation.

Following their flight from here the pair were traced to Bridgeport, Neb., by a posse under Sheriff Duncan of Cheyenne. Another posse, headed by Sheriff George Carroll of Bridgeport, was formed there and the men were trailed to the bank of the North Platte river.

Pursued Men in Trap.

The two posses approached the men from opposite directions, the Cheyenne party coming up on the south side of the river and the Bridgeport posse on the north.

Perceiving the trap, the two men plunged into the stream and swam to a wooded island in the center of the river, which is several hundred yards across at that point.

When the two posses arrived opposite the island, one on either side of the river, their quarry was safely hidden in the undergrowth of the island.

Deputy Sheriff Glenn E. Schultz then volunteered to swim to the island and drive the men from their covert. Stripping off all his clothing, and carrying only a six-shooter revolver which he was forced to carry in his teeth, he swam across the stream.

Battle Follows.

Reaching the bank of the island, he ran into the undergrowth and was lost to the sight of the two parties.

Almost immediately, however, the two men sought by the officers appeared in the open with the deputy some distance behind them.

Carrying Only a Six-Shooter.

Immediately the two posses opened fire on the men and the suspects returned the fire for several minutes until they perceived they were surrounded, when they threw up their hands in token of surrender.

They were then escorted to the bank of the stream by the deputy and returned to the city where they were lodged in the county jail to await hearing in connection with the charge of murder.

CRIPPLE RIDES TO DEATH

Harry A. Swart, Helpless for Nine Years in Chicago Institution, Sought Watery Grave.

Chicago.—Harry A. Swart, a cripple, rode to his death in a wheel chair. For nine years he had been paralyzed and an inmate of the Home for Incurables in Chicago. He complained bitterly of his fate.

When he was missed at the home, attendants began to search for him. He was traced nine blocks to Lake Michigan. A policeman had assisted him across a crowded street. Several pedestrians had helped him along.

Jud Tunkins says a special delivery letter is worth considerably more than a quarter if it's as important as the girl who receives one usually seems to think.

BLACK CAT SAVES PASSENGER TRAIN

Engineer's Mascot Gives Warning of Washed-Out Trestle Just in Time.

Milwaukee, Wis.—Tobey, a Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railroad cat, black as jet, born in the roundhouse, was accustomed to noises of the machines running in and out. Tobey always managed to keep from under the wheels after he had lost his tail under a switch engine. On cold nights he could be found curled up in the cab of his master's "hog."

When the engineer started out he whistled. Tobey would make the cab in a jump and curl up at the engineer's feet and go to sleep.

When Tobey appeared for the run one evening recently he seemed to have a premonition of evil, for he showed reluctance to board the locomotive, but was finally persuaded.

Began to Dash Madly About.

About two in the morning Tobey sprang to his feet and began to dash madly about, clawing at the engineer's feet. Then a light flickered by that told of a high trestle a few miles beyond. The spring rains had made the track "spongy" and raised the stream beneath to a raging torrent.

The engineer knew the bridge had been condemned a few weeks before, so he closed the throttle and jammed on the air. The train came to a stop a few rods from where the headlight showed a chasm that had been spanned by a bridge a few hours before. There were several Pullmans in the train and all occupied.

SECRET RETREAT IS FOUND

Aged Woman Hides Fifteen Years in Top of Business Building in Columbus, O.

Columbus, O.—For 15 years an aged woman has made her home in a room on the top floor of a business building in Columbus, O., almost opposite the state capitol. The affairs of a city of a quarter of a million passed underneath her window. Twentieth century traffic hurried along the business street in Columbus, while behind the dirty window pane she lived after the manner of a hermit in a cave.

Her retreat was found when painters peered into the window. For days the room's inhabitant was watched for. Late one night she was seen to scurry up the steps. Police investigated and found an unkempt room, cobwebbed and filthy. In a corner was a pile of dirty rags, the aged woman's bed. She told officials she had lived in the room 15 years without paying rent. She left it, she said, before dawn and returned at midnight. No one ever saw her come or go, and her existence was suspected but not known.

She was turned over to the Associated Charities. This organization, however, is searching for her. Officials said she disappeared as mysteriously as she lived.

Putting It in a Nutshell.

An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure; only we don't know when to apply the prevention and we do know when to apply the cure.

Lost $50 Bill Lined Mouse Nest in Piano

It was nothing new to a piano tuner sent to tune a piano in a home in Altoona, Pa., to discover a mouse's nest under the keyboard, but his curiosity was aroused when he saw the nest was lined with a certificate from Uncle Sam's treasury. He pulled it out and found a $50 bill which he gave to the woman of the house. Then she explained that last autumn her husband tucked the bill under the carpet for safe-keeping and when, several months later, they looked for it, the bill had disappeared. The mouse had utilized it.

Grief Over Loss of Horse Causes Death

Grafton, W. Va.—The death of his horse, Diamond, which had reached twenty-eight years old, is believed to have hastened the end of Hiram Gaines, sixty-nine year-old merchant. Mr. Gaines was a great lover of horseflesh, and Diamond was the favorite.

The "Liberty" Year.

Liberty day is usually thought of by Americans as July fourth and Liberty year is recalled from our histories as 1776, but statistics indicate that the liberty year of men and women differs. The average age of men seeking divorce is thirty-four and the average age of women on the same quest is twenty-nine.

Collier, Ambassador to Chile

William Miller Collier has been appointed United States ambassador to Chile. He is a diplomat, college president, lawyer and author, among other things. He was minister to Spain under Roosevelt and Taft, and in 1914 Wilson appointed him head of the American delegation to the international conference at Christiana, Norway, to frame a government for the Islands of Spitzbergen. At the time of his appointment to Chile, he had been since 1917 president of George Washington university. He was born in Lodi, N. Y., in 1867, and got his education in Hamilton college and Columbia college law school. He was admitted to the New York bar in 1892. After holding various New York state offices he was appointed by Roosevelt in 1903 a special assistant attorney general of the United States, and assigned to the department of commerce and labor. After returning from Spain in 1909, he was general legal counsel for various American corporations in Europe, and a lecturer on international law and diplomacy. During the war he was active in the Red Cross, and a speaker in the war loan campaigns. He was one of the collaborators on "The Inquiry," conducted in 1917-18, under the direction of Col. E. M. THE PAMPHLET

On Sale Thursday, August 25th

No man fought the late Rev. J. C. A. Borland more bitterly than did Charles J. Bangert, Editor of THE PAMPHLET. What he writes in the September number, therefore, should be of special interests to supporters of both.

This article is no fulsome, gushing eulogy, as too many obituaries are. It is rather a fair, honest and straightforward estimate of a man's work by another who knew it well. Whether you agreed with the late Rev. Borland, or with Charlie Bangert, you should not miss the September PHAMPHLET.

Campbell and the Bergdolls

Mrs. Bruce R. Campbell of the United States army told a house investigating committee that not a single penny of the $6,500 placed by him with a Wall street firm for stock market trading last year was received from the Bergdoll family. Flatly denying the charge by Mrs. Emma C. Bergdoll of Philadelphia that he had been paid $5,000 to aid in obtaining freedom for Grover Cleveland Bergdoll, her draft-dodging son, Major Campbell declared that the sum sent to the brokers was his own money, hidden by his wife at her home since the early days of the war.

The major asserted that a "frightful" injustice had been done him by the committee in permitting Mrs. Bergdoll and a representative of the brokers to testify when he was not present. At various times, Major Campbell declared, he and his wife had $17,000 on deposit.

As military counsel for the slacker, he never received a dollar, he declared. The only things they ever gave him, he said, were three little cambric handkerchiefs, bought at a soldiers' fair on the island, as trinkets for his babies.

Work, forgetting all responsibility of time, appreciation or censure; enjoy it or make believe you do; and in time you really will. DAINTY COMPANY DISHES.

A dish of baked bananas to serve with broiled steak is a most appetizing dish and is prepared thus:

Remove the peeling from a half dozen large bananas, scrape to remove all the coarse threads and lay in a well-buttered glass baking dish. Grate the rind of an orange and one-half a lemon and add the juice of each with one-half cupful of sugar. Pour over the bananas, adding two tablespoonfuls of butter. Baste during the baking, about twenty minutes.

Pear Salad.—Take halves of peeled very ripe pears, or the canned variety may be used if drained. Sprinkle with a teaspoonful of lemon juice and fill the center with a ball of cream cheese. Place on lettuce leaves and cover with a dressing made with the pear juice, if canned fruit is used, or with a little pineapple juice, olive oil, catsup, lemon juice and paprika, with a dash of salt, and sugar if fresh fruit is used.

Peacherino.—Rub a cupful of fresh ripe peeled peaches through a sieve, add a cupful or less depending upon the sweetness of the fruit and the taste of the family. Beat the whites of three eggs until stiff, then fold in the peaches and cream. Pour into a well-buttered baking dish and bake in water until firm. Serve with whipped cream.

Vegetable Dish.—This is the season to cook young onions, carrots and peas together, adding a bit of browned salt pork cut in bits, a cupful of milk and seasonings, just as it is ready to serve. Cut the carrots and onions in thin slices.

Potato Souffle.—Boil and mash ten potatoes, press through a sieve, add two onions chopped fine, three slices of bacon, chopped, the yolks of four eggs well beaten; two tablespoonfuls of chopped parsley. Add a cupful of milk, mix and fold in the stiffly beaten whites. Bake in a buttered dish until puffed and brown. Serve at once.

THE COMMONEST MISTAKES

Judge McCormick of San Francisco says these are the 13 commonest mistakes in life:

To attempt to set up your own standards of right and wrong.

To try to measure the enjoyment of others by your own.

To expect uniformity of opinion in this world.

To fail to make allowances for inexperience.

To endeavor to mold all dispositions alike.

Not to yield to unimportant trifles.

To look for perfection in our own actions.

To worry ourselves and others about what cannot be remedied.

To consider a thing impossible that we cannot ourselves perform.

Failing to help everybody wherever, however we can.

To believe only what our minds can grasp.

Not to make allowances for the weakness of others.

To estimate by some outside quality when it is that within which makes the man.—From the Oklahoman.

Bee's Keen Eye for Landmarks.

How is it that a bee can fly all over a town, and yet invariably come home to the hive in the shortest? There can be little doubt that an intelligent an insect as this has a memory and a keen eye for landmarks. This is testified to by the fact that almost all bees fly by day, whereas such creatures as moths, of no fixed home or occupation, fly in the darkness. A bee would be lost at midnight because it could not recognize its surroundings.

Not Negro Songs.

Most people fancy in a vague that Stephen Foster's songs negroid or were inspired by music. But "Old Folks at the other Foster melodies are unlike negro music as anything possibly be. That their words often in negro dialect and express gro sentiments is simply a historic accident due to the fact that in Foster's day the negro minstrels, real or "corked," were the only means of bringing music before the public.

Among Demi-Season Wraps

THE between-seasons' wrap, like the between-seasons' hat, is an acquisition to the wardrobe that proves to be a very accommodating thing. It makes its appearance at any time of the year in weather that demands it, and passes under the scrutiny of the critical quite sure of their approval. It is made to suit weather conditions rather than seasons.

Mid-summer brought in and late summer is approving some very handsome knitted garments, capes and coats, along with tuxedos and sweater-coats, that have a promising future. They are made in many colors and color combinations, and varied as knitted garments can be, by the use of different kinds of stitches in the process of making them. Many of the capes are accordion plaited and many both striped and plaited. For making collars, cuffs, borders and all trimmings angora cloth is used and the combination of the two fabrics is wonderfully effective.

The cape pictured is a handsome wrap for present wear and for fall. It is shown in plain colors and in stripes in a considerable variety of colors. In white with a stripe of orange and trimming of light gray angora it is a beautiful wrap but not without rivals, in vivid green with white or gray angora, in blue and white stripes, in tan and brown and all the "sweater tones."

Duvetyn will assume the responsibility of providing many wraps for autumn. It is made in all colors and its texture softens and enriches even the most vivid of them. Among the smartest of the materials for fall and winter appears the reliable and time-honored cheviot, showing vagaries in its weave as well as plain patterns.

GIVE GUINEA CHICKS WELL-BALANCED FEED

Nothing Is Required for First Thirty-Six Hours.

Fowls Are Natural Rangers and Will Pick Up Seeds, Grasses, Insects and Green Vegetation to Supply Much of Living.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Guineas are fed in much the same way as chickens, but they require less feed, as they are natural rangers and can be trusted to find enough seeds of weeds and grasses, buds, insects and green vegetation in the fields to supply much of their living. For the first 36 hours after hatching no feed is required, as the sustenance from the egg is sufficient to nourish them for this period. The first meal may consist of a little hard-boiled egg mixed with bread crumbs, or bread may be soaked in milk, squeezed partly dry, and fed in small bits. Clabbered milk also is very good, poultry specialists in the United States Department of Agriculture say.

Three times a day is as often as they need to be fed, one feed consisting of clabbered milk or the bread and egg or bread and milk mixture, and the other two of chick feed. If the coop is placed in a field or pasture where green feed is available, the guinea chicks can secure this for themselves; otherwise, sprouted oats, dandelion leaves, lettuce, or onion tops cut fine should be furnished. Water, grit, and fine oyster shell should be before them always.

Brood of Guinea Chicks.

By the end of the first week the young guineas will be finding enough worms and insects to take the place of the egg or milk feed, so this may be eliminated and chick feed given morning and night. If clabbered milk is available, however, it can be continued with excellent success, since guineas are very fond of variety in their ration and it is conducive to quick growth. As the birds grow older whole wheat, oats, and cracked corn can be substituted gradually for the chick feed.

WAY TO PREVENT MILDEWING

Keep Leather in Well-Ventilated, Dry, Well-Lighted Place, Exposed to Sunlight.

Any leather article is almost certain to mildew if kept in a warm, damp, and dark place, such as a closet, cellar, or stable. This mildewing probably will not reduce seriously the serviceability of the article, unless it is allowed to remain on the leather too long. It may, however, change the color appreciably, thus injuring the appearance. The simplest way to prevent mildewing, say specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture, is to keep the leather in a well-ventilated, dry, well-lighted place, preferably one exposed to the sunlight. Mildew can not make much headway in the sunshine. When mildew develops, it should be washed off with soap and warm water, or simply wiped off with a moist cloth, drying the leather well afterwards. These simple measures are preferable to the application in the home of preparations designed to prevent the growth of mildew.

POISON BAIT FOR CUTWORMS

White Arsenic, Arsenate of Lead or Paris Green Mixed With Bran Is Effective.

Cutworms appear in early spring and cut off the stems of young plants at the surface of the ground. They are quickly destructive. The best remedy is poisoned bait. For a small garden mix two level tablespoons of white arsenic, arsenate of lead, or Paris green into five pounds of dry bran. Add from four to six quarts of water, in which half a pint of sorghum or cheap molasses has been mixed. After the mash has stood several hours scatter it thinly over the garden or a small quantity at the base of the plants. Put the poison on late in the day, so it will be moist during the night when the cutworms feed.

VALUE OF SILAGE

One ton of silage is equal to about 226 pounds of corn and 613 pounds of clover hay for dairy cows.

One ton of silage is equal to 144 pounds of corn and 930 pounds of clover hay for fattening lambs.

These figures are calculated from Wisconsin experiments.

One thing we do NOT do

"Ah 'clares to goodness, Ah just rubs de daylights out ob dem things, an' still de're not clean," cries the old colored laundress.

And literally she does rub the daylights out of things.

That is one thing we do not do—we've discovered a better way of cleansing—a gentle, certain way that produces aseptic cleanness without wearing or weakening the fabric.

Drop in some day and watch our modern washing machines at work—see how oceans of pure, soft water and suds of mild, white soap surge through and through the fabrics, washing every trace of soil away.

50,000 Miles in a Yacht

The yacht, 98 feet long, has a heating plant for cold climates and a ventilating system for the tropics. The vessel draws only six feet and Gowen expects to go far inland on rivers.

Cost to America of 1920 Crime Wave Is One Hundred Million Dollars

By W. B. JOYCE, President National Surety Co.

An item of $100,000,000, hitherto not taken into calculation, must be added to what the war cost America. This huge sum is the estimated cost of the 1920 crime wave, which is traceable to the effect of the war on humanity. If the present ratio is maintained, crime losses for 1921 will be equally as large. More serious than money is the unprecedented addition to the ranks of America's criminals.

The $100,000,000 estimate is based upon the embezzlement and burglary claims paid for 1920 by 30 of the country's leading safety and burglary insurance companies. These companies paid claims aggregating $15,813,672, while in 1913, before the outbreak of the war, claims for only $3,328,789 were paid. But approximately 90 per cent of burglary and embezzlement losses are not insured, and in many instances where full claims were paid, the insurance was far too small to cover the actual loss.

Every war is followed by widespread disrespect of law. Cynical thoughts of the cheapness of human life, indifference to human suffering and disregard of others' rights are aftermaths of armed conflict.

Agitators find a more ready field for the spread of their doctrines. The spread of discontent was greatly augmented by the oft-repeated reports of enormous profits piled up during the war. Two other factors are the belief in the unequal distribution of wealth and the vulgar display of valuables in public places.

Nickel is regarded as one of the most useful metals, though it lacks the prestige of silver and gold. It is bright and hard and non-corrosive, and in combination with iron it has been in great demand for war equipment and for bridges and other structural work.

The smallest screws in the world, used by watchmakers, are so tiny that they look like dust. An ordinary thimble could hold about 100,000 of them. Some of the smallest of them are only 4-1,000 of an inch across and can hardly be seen with the naked eye.

The investigating scientist, in explaining how it is that diamonds have a temperature different from spurious gems made of glass, says the difference in temperature is due to the relative molecular compactum of the gem and the glass, the harder the stone the less susceptible to heat.

Daddy's Evening Tales

MARY GRAHAM BONNER

THE MONARCH.

"A monarch," said the Monarch Butterfly, "is the ruler. That is the first thing to know. Of course when I say that the monarch is a ruler I mean that a monarch is a ruler of other creatures or rather that he has been chosen to be the head of other creatures and to guide and direct them.

"I don't mean that a monarch is a ruler such as children use in school.

"I don't mean that at all.

"I've seen them look at me from the school room late in June, just before school was out for the summer holidays. And I've seen how they envied me, with no lessons to learn and no studying to do.

"But I've not felt very sorry for them, because I've known that soon they will be out for their vacations.

"We belong to the Milkweed family of butterflies, because we feed upon milkweed leaves.

"We are very fond of beauty, and even when we are in the chrysalis state we live in lovely little green homes with gold decorations.

"When the autumn comes we go away to the south just as the birds do.

"Perhaps, though, before I go further, I should tell you what I look like.

"I'm sure when I do you will be able to recognize me, for I am seen about a great deal.

"I am of reddish brown in colorr, with black legs and black head, and a collar with white spots.

"I wear black edges to my wings, which are also handsomely marked with red spots.

"I'm a big fellow, and you see me about a great deal. But I was going to tell you about a monarch and a ruler. They named my family the Monarch Butterfly because we were so big and beautiful and wore such handsome costumes.

"I Am a Pet."

"We take our time about doing things, too, which shows that we are rather superior and don't have to scurry for everything we want.

"They saw us flying over the fields and about the countryside and they said:

"'You really are monarchs of all butterflies, for you're so big and beautiful. And you should have some particularly fine name given to you so that people can call you something worthy of your statcliness and your beauty and your style.

"'You should have some special name!'

"So they decded that the name of Monarch would do beautifully for us as a special name.

"Just as Milkweed butterflies does all right as a general family name.

"But I have something more still to tell. And that is, that I am a pet butterfly.

"Yes, I am fed sweetened water which is like honey from flowers, and I perch on a little girl's finger and she gives me this drink.

"She has made me so happy and so tame. And she has never frightened me, and she has been patient to teach me to sip the water as I sit upon her finger.

"If she had caught me only to add me to a collection I would have been very sad, for then I would have wished I hadn't been sweet and pleasant.

"But she didn't do anything like that. And so I have something quite unusual and interesting to tell about my life.

"That surely is an interesting fact. I live in her garden and I not only make friends with the flowers, but I make friends with the little girl.

"I'd like to sing a song about her in my butterfly fashion.

So he sang:

"She is very graceful, she is very fair;
She has lovely blue eyes and golden hair.
Everyone loves her and cares for her so,
She's a general favorite where'er she may go,
And among her admirers I count myself one,
So I wing her this verse as I sit in the sun."

And the Monarch butterfly danced a dance of joy with his beautiful wings.

Saluting the Flag.

In some of the schools since our entry into the war, saluting the flag has become part of the school exercises. And it is important that this should not be allowed to lapse into a meaningless formality. Saluting the flag will not help to inspire patriotism if it is a perfunctory form. Put your heart into it, whatever the attitude of your schoolmates. As far as you are concerned, make each occasion a fresh consecration of yourself to the service of your country.

But One Way.

There is but one way to heaven for the learned and the unlearned.—Jeremy Taylor.

BOY SCOUTS

(Conducted by National Council of the Boy Scouts of America.)

CO-OPERATE WITH SCOUTS

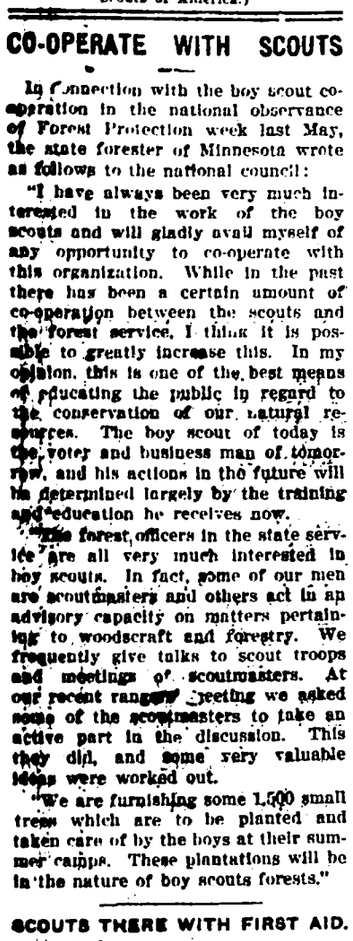

In connection with the boy scout co-operation in the national observance of Forest Protection week last May, the state forester of Minnesota wrote as follows to the national council:

"I have always been very much interested in the work of the boy scouts and will gladly avail myself of any opportunity to co-operate with this organization. While in the past there has been a certain amount of co-operation between the scouts and the forest service, I think it is possible to greatly increase this. In my opinion, this is one of the best means of educating the public in regard to the conservation of our natural resources. The boy scout of today is the voter and business man of tomorrow, and his actions in the future will be determined largely by the training and education he receives now.

"The forest officers in the state service are all very much interested in boy scouts. In fact, some of our men are scoutmasters and others act in an advisory capacity on matters pertaining to woodscraft and forestry. We frequently give talks to scout troops and meetings of scoutmasters. At our recent rangers' meeting we asked some of the scoutmasters to take an active part in the discussion. This they did, and some very valuable ideas were worked out.

"We are furnishing some 1,500 small trees which are to be planted and taken care of by the boys at their summer camps. These plantations will be in the nature of boy scouts forests."

SCOUTS THERE WITH FIRST AID.

When One of Their Troop Meets With an Accident, the Others Know What to Do.

SCOUT PREPAREDNESS.

It certainly pays to be prepared. A scout may work his fingers nearly off on first aid practice and never have a chance to put his skill to real, sure-enough rescue work, but then again—when he least expects it the opportunity may be his to do a real job of life saving. Here is a case in point. A boy and his little sister were alone in a house. The little girl, running across the room, slipped and falling forward ran her arm through the window pane, severing an artery. What would the average boy do? Run for help? Telephone for the doctor? Well and good. But, in the meantime, a severed artery means terrific loss of blood, and even death unless it is checked instantly. There isn't time for ordinary precautions. It is a case of instant action. Luckily in the instance here cited, the boy was a boy plus, that is, a boy scout and he took charge of the situation himself, improvised a tourniquet to stop the flow of blood and then sent for the doctor. When the latter arrived he declared that the boy's prompt action undoubtedly saved the child's life.

SCOUT TRAINING SAVES LIFE.

Little Mildred Cannon, a five-year-old youngster, started a little camp-fire of her own in her back yard. Her clothing caught fire and the child ran screaming toward the house. Her brother Eugene, a fourteen-year-old scout, heard the little one's outcry and rushing to the rescue rolled her in the sand, extinguishing the flames, undoubtedly saving the child from being burned to death. Another incident which goes to prove that a scout really is prepared and doesn't lose his head in time of emergency.

ASK THE SCOUTS.

Two hundred Brooklyn scouts are acting as volunteer police in Prospect park, aiding in the park department's "Save the Parks" drive.

Every year our forests are illegally robbed to obtain Christmas trees, half of which are never sold or used. Deputy Forest Supervisor Kirby of Arizona enlisted a scout troop's services last winter in preventing the unlawful and vandalistic cutting of trees in the Crook National forest.

ACCUSE FATHER OF 4 MURDERS

Connecticut Man Is Charged With Atrocious Crimes by Two of His Sons.

PASSION FOR MONEY

One Son Says Father Fired Building in Which Three Persons Were Sleeping and Shot Them Down as They Fled.

Middletown, Conn.—Lodged in jail in Middlesex county, Conn., is a short, stolid German, who, if all that is said about him is true, or even half of it, is likely never again to regain his freedom, if he is not condemned to death.

Emil Schutte was the former ruler of Shallerville, a little settlement of 200 souls. He conducted the general store. He was former constable in the settlement. He was and is domineering in manner and was a stern character, of whom the people stood in awe. For years he was regarded the terror of the community and lorded it over others with proud disdain. Things had prospered with him and with a good business and a comfortable sum laid away in the bank, he took on great importance in his own opinion and for that matter in the eyes of the people.

Idol Has Fallen.

But the idol has fallen from its pedestal. Schutte lies in jail on the charge of assault with intent to kill, committed against his wife, and as the result of investigations now being conducted by authorities he may have also to answer within very few days for a series of atrocious murders.

One of Schutte's weaknesses was an inordinate passion for money. Because she would not deed over to him certain property she possessed, the wife was driven from her home by the enraged and avaricious husband, who chased her into the woods, firing revolver bullets at her as she fled. Mrs. Schutte was compelled to swear out a warrant for his arrest. The moment the old man was in jail, people began to talk and the authorities to act upon their intimations and suggestions.

The result is that Schutte is accused by his twelve-year-old son, Augustine, with the murder of a farmhand, killed, it is believed, for his money, and is charged by another son, Julius, with having shot to death three members of one family and

BOY LIVES WITH SHOT IN HEART

Life in Balance for Several Days; He Leaves Hospital Two Weeks Later.

SHOT WHILE AT PLAY

Doctors Say It Is the Most Remarkable Case in History of Hospital—Seven Buckshot Pellets Lodged in Heart Muscles.

Paterson, N. J.—Alive with seven pellets of buckshot in the muscles of his heart, and apparently suffering slight, if any, ill effects, is the remarkable case of twelve-year-old Lawrence Setterfield, of Bloomingdale, N. J., according to doctors of the Paterson General hospital.

The boy was accidentally shot on May 1. He left the hospital two weeks later, having prevailed on his parents and the staff doctors to let him do so, declaring he was all right, and did not want to stay indoors any longer. His pleading won the consent of the attending surgeons, but not before a further X-ray examination was made.

The result showed the pellets all remaining in the muscles of the heart. They could be seen moving around when the boy was taking long breaths, according to the statement made by Dr. Samuel Thompson, of the hospital staff.

Remarkable Case.

"When this little fellow was first brought in," Dr. Thompson said, "he hovered between life and death for several days. When he left here he was apparently none the worse for his accident. I find his case one of the most remarkable ever entered in this hospital, or that has occurred in Passaic county during my memory. It is almost beyond belief."

On Sunday, May 1, the boy, with his two cousins, Thompson Yatman, six years old, and William Yaturn, fourteen years old, were playing around the grounds of the Yatman home in Bloomingdale. Thompson went into the Yatman barn and brought out an old shotgun belonging to his father. "It was the old story, "we did not know it was loaded."

The children began the usual boyish game of "bandits." The old shotgun in the hands of Thompson, youngest of the three, was discharged. Part of the load of shot struck William Yatman in the left leg and a scattering of the shot penetrated Lawrence Setterfield's left side, lodging in the heart muscle.

Life Hung in Balance.

Hearing the report, the father of Thompson and William ran out of his house and found his eldest son and his nephew lying on the ground partly

Nuts in Immense Quantities.

On the north coast of Guatemala 60,000 tons of palmae nuts are said to be available for exportation annually, and with an expenditure of $10,000 for highway improvement this quantity could probably be increased to 100,000 tons per annum. On the Pacific or south coast the yield of corozo nuts, it is estimated, could easily be increased to 300,000 tons per annum. There is a supply of cheap labor in this southern region.

It Is Impossible for Modern Society to Part Company With Its Past

By CALVIN COOLIDGE, Vice President

The most pressing requirement of the present hour is not how we are to solve our economic problems, but: Where are we to find the sustaining influences for the realities of life? How are we to justify the existing form of government in our republic? On what can we rely for a continuation of that service of sacrifice which has made modern civilization possible?

It is impossible for society to break off with its past. It is the product of all which has gone before. We could not cut ourselves off from all influences which existed prior to the Declaration of Independence and expect any success by undertaking to ignore all that happened before that date.

The principles and ideals on which we must depend not only for a continuance of modern culture, but, I believe, for a continuance of the development of science itself, come to us from the classics. All this is the reason that the sciences and the professions reach their highest development as the supplement of a classical education.

There has been a theory that all learning ought to be at once translated into scientific and commercial activities. Advancement, however, can not be insured without a culture.

Unless Americans shall continue to live by something more than the present, to be moved by something more than material gains, they will go down as other peoples have gone down before some nation possessed of a greater moral force. The will to endure is not the creation of a moment; it is the result of long training.

What's the Senate Quorum?

Senator Walsh of Montana (portrait herewith) raised the question the other day in the senate; what constitutes a quorum of the senate. The occasion was this: Senator Wolcott of Delaware had resigned, his successor had not been appointed, and the president of the senate had ruled that as the senate consisted of but 95 members, 48 constituted a majority (quorum). Senator Walsh argued that the decision was in violation of the Constitution, which provided that a majority was more than half of a senate of full strength. Senator Lodge of Massachusetts, after considerable debating, produced the action of the senate on October 11, 1893:

"Mr. Wolcott raised a question of order, viz, that under the fifth section of Article I of the Constitution, it required a majority of all the senators to which the several states are entitled to constitute a quorum, and therefore the number present should be 45. The vice president (Mr. Stevenson) overruled the question of order, stating that in his decision he would be governed by the rule, viz, Rule III, clause 2, which provides that "a quorum shall consist of a majority of the senators duly chosen and sworn." An appeal from this decision was laid on the table—yeas 38, nays 5."

Senator Walsh still held that the rule was a violation of the Constitution, and that the rule should be changed.

LOUIS SHAPIRO

The Treasurer-"Devil"

By REV. H. OSTROM, D. D.
Extension Department, Moody Bible Institute, Chicago.

TEXT.—Judas also knew the place.—John 18:2.

Keeping good company is well, but it cannot guarantee that one is good. Judas is with the other eleven apostles, and with Jesus too. He knows the Garden of Gethsemane as a place where Jesus often visits. He has been there with him, nevertheless he is a betrayer. Like the foolish virgins in the parable, he has had enough of the oil of the Holy Spirit's influence on his soul to make him accept our Lord's company in such a place, but he will not accept of eternal life as a gift. Outwardly he has joined the Apostles' Band, but, inwardly he is a thief. Good company, but a thief's heart!

His choosing to "join" before he had "received" may have cost him his soul. If he had humbly insisted upon not joining until he had accepted our Lord Jesus Christ as the one who would fulfill all sacrificial types for sinners, then he might have ranked with John or Paul.

He knew the place. Those trees could talk to him. He could gather messages from the footprints and paths there. The very air was eloquent, to him. Oh, there are records which do not fit into music boxes or conform to machinery. They are heard at most unexpected times. As if started by unseen hands, in the dark of the night, they compel us to listen. Just as some who read this can hardly help thinking of the path up to the old schoolhouse, where, in the winter revival, they sang, "Come ye sinners poor and needy," or of the old kitchen in the old farmhouse where family prayers were conducted once a day. How often the Spirit of God whispers, "Forget not all his benefits." But Judas had a sinful heart and would not yield that to Jesus the sin-bearer. The place was outside the man, the heart of sin was close within. O'roon over the place, he might, but like a soldier on guard, he would fight Jesus away from that citadel of the heart.

And why should Judas be one of the twelve? To be sure, he is later substituted by Matthias, but why was he ever admitted? "I have chosen you twelve and one of you is a devil," are the words so startling. And that one the treasurer! Yes, for when God is manifested fighting sin, he asks for no favors or quarter. He fights it on its own ground and out in the open. The apostles are in the thick of the centuries-old conflict with human sin. So far as the record states there could not have been much money for Judas to handle anyway. But he can be allowed to add and subtract and have first-hand information, where, if there had been any trickery advised, he would have known about it.

Now this is the man who sells Jesus for a few cents more than five dollars. Yes, but this is the man who throughout the whole known record never states that he finds any trace of deception or trickery on Jesus' part. This "son of perdition" on the inside, with first-hand information, this "devil" cannot find a flaw or a fleck in all the structure of Jesus' conduct. He objects to Mary anointing him, but remember, he nowhere calls him "Lord."

Do we not see that today men and women, wayward and guilty, will say that they do not criticize Jesus? His enemies admit, by the ten thousand, that they "find no fault in him." Yet they refuse him their hearts. How could Jesus Christ be such a true teacher, leader of men and example if his repeated declaration of his Savior-ship were false? How can a man properly appreciate his teaching and his wonder works and at the same moment reject his shed blood? You admire him, but you do not receive him; beware lest, for a price, you sell him.

There is another "place" mentioned in the account. Judas went to "his own place." He had heard of that place from Jesus himself. "To be cast into hell" had doubtless rung in his ears more than once. No garden with olive trees there. No Jesus to teach one there. The sale Judas made and that place are closely associated. If he will hear him teach and even endorse his greatness, but yet have the heart to sell him, that one place is his destiny. Soul, do not reject the Lord Jesus as Saviour today, lest, tomorrow the heart that so rejects proves to be the heart that sells, and you enter that—"place." Like a garden whose trees and flowers all speak of blessing, so is his grace today, but, if you reject that, I would that you might realize that you turn toward Judas' place. Judas had, as it were, a deed in hand to that place when he was right in the company of Jesus. He had fully realized it, doubtless the very possession of it would have been to him like fire.

Sour Milk.

Among the many uses for sour milk is that of silver polish. Put the silverware in the liquid and let it remain for 20 to 30 minutes. Then wash as usual. It will look as if it had been polished.

Mica an Excellent Insulator.

Mica does not burn or melt, except at a very high temperature, and therefore it is an excellent electric insulator. It is non-hygroscopic and offers more resistance to high voltage electricity than any insulating material known.

Boon to the Armless.

An English machine for the use of armless men consists of a table under which are legs worked by the toes. The pegs are connected with artificial "arms" above the table, which do almost everything that can be done by human arms. Thus the patient can use a spoon, knife and fork, drink from a cup, tuck a cigarette and place it in his mouth, open a box of matches, strike a match and light the cigarette, typewrite, turn the leaves of a book, play checkers, wash and dry his face and neck, etc.

Sundial Really of Little Use.

The sundial is nothing like so efficient as a watch. It never was very much of an aid to man as a time indicator. It never professed to do more than tell the time of day, because it could not tell the time of night, and on old sundials, as well as on many new ones, is this sentence, often in Latin: "I mark none but sunny hours." So that on foggy days, or on days of gloom and cloudy skies, the "gnomon," which is that triangular piece whose shadow points out the time on the dial, casts no shadow.

SPECIALISTS GIVE DIRECTIONS FOR PUTTING DOWN EGG SUPPLY

What Is Needed In Preserving Eggs for Winter Supply.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

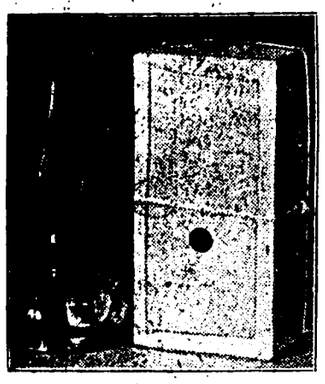

Boys and girls who are members of poultry clubs, or those who are interested in any way in chickens, should learn how to candle and preserve eggs. Candling means the sorting out of bad eggs before a strong light in such a manner that the rays of light come to the eye through the egg so that the contents can be seen and the condition noted.

The shell of a newly laid egg has a soft "glow" or "bloom" which is a sign of perfect freshness. This glow or bloom is destroyed by handling, and in any case disappears after the egg has been exposed to the air for a short time. After that it is difficult to distinguish a fresh egg from an old one by the appearance of the shell, so candling becomes necessary if you would be sure that the egg is good.

Candle Eggs in a Dark Room.

Eggs can be candled best in a dark room, by the use of a bright light inclosed in a box or case having a hole a trifle smaller than an egg directly opposite the light. The egg is held at this hole for examination. An ordinary hand lamp, a lantern, an incandescent bulb, or a flashlight can be used. If you are using a box and a hand lamp the box should have a hole at the top, otherwise the heat from the top of the chimney would set the box on fire. A tester chimney made of tin, such as is used on a lamp for testing eggs in incubators, may be used for candling, in which case you would not need the box, as the eggs are tested by means of a hole in the side of the tin.

A perfectly good, fresh egg shows "full" and "clear" before the light.

A Shoebox and a Lamp Will Do for Candling Eggs.

There is almost no air cell at the large end and the yolk outline is only faintly visible. A fixed air cell of one-eighth to three sixteenths of an inch in depth indicates a fresh egg, as eggs run generally. A larger air cell with a movable lower line indicates—according to sizes and fluctuations—a stale egg or one becoming weak and watery. Very small dark spots sometimes seen usually are blood clots. Large dark spots, blood rings, and shadows are due to heat and germination, and indicate first stages of decay. An egg that appears very dark or black, except for a large fixed air cell, contains a chick at an advanced stage of incubation.

Fresh eggs, properly preserved, may be kept from six to ten months and be almost as good for household purposes as fresh eggs. Another reason for preserving eggs in water glass, for instance, is the fact that they do not acquire the objectionable "cold-storage taste."

Allow Three Dozen to Gallon.

To preserve 15 dozen eggs in water glass these directions are given by the specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture:

Select a five-gallon earthen crock, clean it thoroughly, scald, and allow it to dry. Heat ten to twelve quarts of water to the boiling point, and allow it to cool. When the water is cool, measure out nine quarts, put into the crock, and add one quart of sodium silicate, commonly called water glass, which can be bought at any drug store. Stir well, so that the solution becomes thoroughly mixed.

The solution thus prepared is ready for the eggs, which may be put in all at once, or from time to time as they are obtainable. Care should be taken in putting them into the jar not to crack or break the shells; also be sure the solution covers the eggs at all times. Put the crock containing the preserved eggs in a cool, dry place, and cover with a tight lid or waxed paper to prevent evaporation.

To preserve a smaller or larger number of eggs, the solution should be mixed and prepared in the same proportions.

Use Only Clean Fresh Eggs.

If best results are to be obtained, the eggs should be clean and fresh, and preferably infertile. For this reason it is always best when possible to candle the eggs carefully before preserving them unless they are known to be strictly fresh. If an egg is only slightly soiled a cloth dampened with vinegar may be used to remove stains, but eggs should never be washed with water or soap and water, as water removes the protective coating on the shell and may tend to cause the contents to spoil. Never use badly-soiled or cracked eggs. They may spoil all the others.

Fresh eggs preserved according to these directions usually will keep for from six to ten months, and can be used satisfactorily for cooking and for the table. If, however, preserved eggs are to be boiled, a small hole should be made with a pin in the larger end of the shell before placing them in the water, to allow the air in the egg to escape when heated, and thus prevent cracking.

POOLING FEATURE IS MOST FEASIBLE IDEA

Each Grower Receives Same Price for His Products.

Individual Members Amply Protected From Loss Because of Unfavorable Market Conditions of a Temporary Nature.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The pooling of products sold through co-operative organizations is an important feature of co-operative marketing, specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture have found. By pooling is meant averaging the returns received for products sold during a certain period, or for certain shipments, so that each grower having products of the same grade receives the same price. The success of a pooling system depends upon the observance of uniform grading and packing of the products.

This method of operation, it is said, protects the individual member from loss because of unfavorable market conditions of a temporary nature. Some farmers' marketing organizations, especially grain-elevator companies, purchase the members' products outright. Conditions and practices in grain marketing make such a plan feasible, but organizations handling other products usually find it to their advantage to pool shipments and await returns before making payments to the growers.

In this way the association is relieved of speculative risks, the avoidance of which is highly desirable. Co-operative creameries, which prorate to the members monthly, in accordance with the amount of butter fat each has delivered the preceding month, the returns received for products sold less operating expenses, are good examples of pooling.

The length of the pooling period varies with the products handled and the local conditions. Thus there are car lot, daily, weekly, semimonthly, monthly, and seasonal pools.

MATERIAL FOUND IN WHEAT

Specialists Define Terms Used in Federal Standards—Dockage Is Easily Removed.

There are two terms in the federal wheat standards which apply to foreign material, explain specialists of the bureau of markets, United States Department of Agriculture—"dockage" and "foreign material other than dockage." The term dockage is applied to the foreign material which can be removed readily from the wheat by the use of appropriate sieves, cleaning devices, or other practical means suited to separate the foreign material present. Foreign material other than dockage is the foreign material that is not separated in the screening and remains in the dockage-free sample and is a factor in the grading, definite percentages being permitted within each numerical grade. Dockage does not affect the grade.

CUT CLOVER EARLY

Do not delay overmuch in getting off the first crop of clover; often the early cut field will yield a really worthwhile crop in September, and price or no price, clover in the mow is a comforting asset when the winter snows drift over the fields and yards.

Two Charming New Over-Blouses

THOSE new blouses that dispose of the waistline by dispensing with a belt and covering it themselves, are having an immense success. There is no longer any danger of skirt and blouse parting company under a separate belt, and going their separate ways. This in itself is enough to insure the triumph of these new over-blouses, but it is furthered also by their gracefulness. A vague waistline like an uneven hemline is more pleasing to the eye than a straight line.

In these new over-blouses are all sorts of materials for all kinds of service beginning with wash silks, pongee and cotton, for utility wear, and ending with georgette, net and laces for dress. All the usual materials are used in them, but they are prettiest in the very soft, sheer fabrics, as fine voile and georgette. A model made of georgette in two colors is shown at the left of the two pictured here, and is one of the most graceful and beautiful that the designers have accomplished in this much admired material. It is one of many slip-on blouses that fasten on the shoulder, and has its collar, cuffs and border for the arm's-eye of georgette in a contrasting color. A very simple pattern in beading finishes a design that has few rivals in beauty of line, color and becomingness.

A semi-dress blouse of taffeta silk is shown at the right. The taffeta is tucked in cross-box pattern to form the lower part of the blouse, at the front and the odd embellishment of the three-quarter length sleeves. A short sash of taffeta extends from each side and ties in a small bow at the back. Each square, formed by the crossing tucks, is centered with a long bead, and this model is very pretty in dark colors with black beads. The plain square neck invites a collar of lace or organdy.

For Milady's Shoes.

The undressing of the foot continues. Now women are wearing toe caps and heel-caps. Cross straps run up from the toes to the ankle to meet the heel strap which fastens around the ankle. The best to be said for such shoes is that they use up little leather; but that does not make them cheap. The long, pointed shoes have a certain popularity, but most women still prefer the short-vamped shoe. It is now generally accepted that the leg should be clothed in a light or transparent stocking, and the shoe must be either black or in the same shade. Gray stockings with shoes in suede to match are greatly liked; mahogany stockings with kid shoes to match are newer.—London Times.

New Features in Fall Styles

IF IT WERE not that apparel is always interesting and that there is so much diversity in the interpretation of the styles, the discussion of fall suits in August would be premature. But suits are the main stay in the wardrobe of most women and, therefore, they like to give them considerable thought, before making a choice.

For several years tailo tendencies have turned away from severely plain suits to go in the direction of elaboration in trimmings. So far no reaction has started: the new suits are nearly all embellished with some sort of trimming. There is nothing startlingly new in their lines which are almost straight or follow vaguely those of the natural figure. The main points of difference between them and the suits of last season lies in the length of coats and skirts and in the shape of sleeves and collars. As a rule, skirts are longer and coats vary from finger tip to knee length, although there are some that are shorter. Skirts continue plain and straight, but are wide enough for freedom in walking.

Of these two suits the one at the left may be regarded as typical of fall styles. It is made of one of those suitings with a suede-like finish, and the model pictured is in a warm brown color. The coat is uneven in length and decorated with silk embroidery in self color. Its collar and tuxedo lapels are made of taupe-colored nutria fur, and there are cuffs of the same fur.

In the suit at the right the designer has experimented with a wider skirt, having a flare toward the bottom and decorative panels of embroidery. These panels on suits and one-piece dresses are often in more than one color. The coat is shorter and ornamented with an embroidered panel at each side like those on the skirt. Moleskin fur makes the pockets, collar and band of fur on this coat.

DRUDGERY DONE AWAY WITH

Unusually Well Designed and Substantially Built—Has Screened-in Sun Porch and Sleeping Porch—Rooms Are Airy.

By WILLIAM A. RADFORD.

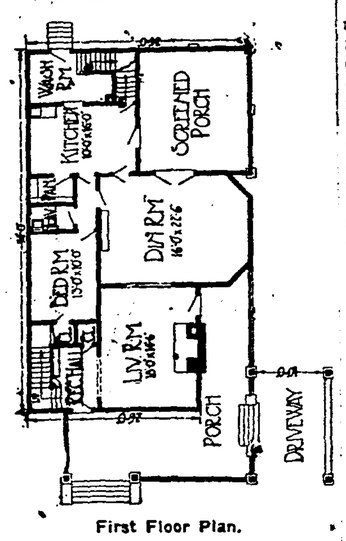

Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give advice FREE OF COST on all subjects pertaining to the subject of building, for the readers of this paper. On account of his wide experience as Editor, Author and Manufacturer, he is, without doubt, the highest authority on all these subjects. Address all inquiries to William A. Radford, No. 1827 Prairie avenue, Chicago, Ill., and only enclose two-cent stamp for reply.

Building ideas have changed a whole lot in the space of less than ten years. Many old features which were considered absolutely necessary to the comfort of a home have been eliminated entirely and many new ideas which were frowned upon as freaks when first suggested are now the regular thing. We have in mind the sun parlor or porch and sleeping porch, now one of the most popular features in city home, apartment or farm home. People have become educated to the appreciation of good fresh air when sleeping. Our grandfathers regarded open windows in the sleeping rooms with a feeling akin to horror. Everything was shut down tight and it seemed to be the notion to prevent as little fresh air as possible from getting into the bedrooms.

But times have changed radically. Today fresh air is recognized as one of the greatest aids to health, and homes are being erected along lines that will provide a maximum of fresh air, of course without discomfort. The number of windows in a dwelling have been greatly increased and the ventilation facilities of the bedrooms vastly improved.

Along the lines of better ventilation has followed the two most important innovations of the last decade, the sun parlor and sleeping porch. In the beautiful, large spacious farm home shown here both of these features are prominent. A large screened-in sun porch on the main floor provides a wonderful recreation center for the family when the warm weather becomes uncomfortable. In the winter this same porch can be glazed in and made into a very valuable room.

A wide attractive driveway leads the way to this charming farm home. It passes under a portecochere covered by an extension of the roof porch supported by concrete block and wood pillars. The front porch extends the width of the house and is approached by stairs on the drive and at the end of the main walk. The front entrance opens into a small reception hall with a handy closet for outside clothes. This room in turn leads through a wide open doorway into the living room on one side. This room is a very comfortable center for the family, 18 by 13 feet 6 inches with a great open fireplace providing a wealth of warmth and cheer on the cold and chilly nights. Plenty of light comes from triple window in front and small side windows.

Another open doorway to the rear brings us into view of the dining room, an equally spacious and cheerful room, 16 by 22 feet, extending to one side in the form of a large bay with four windows. It opens at one side into a hall, at the other into the kitchen and screened porch which is at the far corner of the first floor. This screen porch is also connected with the kitchen and can be used very conveniently for breakfast or other meals to save much work for the housewife.

The kitchen is modeled along practical lines, being small, condensed and complete. It is only 10 by 16 feet. Immediately adjacent is the washroom, a very essential part of the farm home because of the work it saves and its general convenience for the men who come in from the field.

The kitchen is connected with a small bedroom by a hall which opens into a lavatory. This bedroom is very handy for the men who have to get up very early in the morning and who do not wish to disturb the rest of the family.

The sleeping quarters are located on the second floor and consist of five bedrooms and a large sleeping porch, 18 by 8 feet. The bedrooms vary in size from the smallest, 9 feet 6 inches by 13 feet, to the largest, 16 feet by 16 feet 6 inches. This large room is over the dining room and gets the benefit of the wonderful lighting and ventilation afforded by the large bay window. All of the rooms are exceptionally well lighted and airy, and have plenty of closet space. In one corner is a small sewing room, 10 by 8 feet.

While this home is large and rather pretentious, it is by no means an exception, and is indicative of the type of homes farmers are building for their families. They are demanding the best of comforts because they realize that is the touchstone to family harmony and instrumental in keeping the children on the farm after they grow up and appreciate the good things of home life.

WORLD MENACED BY TYPHUS

Dreaded Fever in Poland and Galicia and It Is Feared It Will Spread.

The severe epidemic of typhus fever now raging in Poland and Galicia must be regarded as an international danger, and there can be very little doubt that if it is not checked in the new stricken areas it will spread westward, says the Medical Record. It has been conclusively shown that the infection is carried by lice. The principal carrier is the body louse, which anchors itself in the underclothing next to the skin and feeds twice a day. The only remedy against the parasite is the immediate baking or disinfection of clothing.

Typhus is essentially a winter disease and occurs most frequently in temperate climates, the obvious explanation being that its development is enhanced by overcrowding, bad ventilation and close contact in dwellings. The mortality is almost invariably high among doctors and nurses. Our greatest safeguard is that typhus is now thoroughly understood, while precautions can be applied without difficulty.

Cumulative Funeral Services.

The custom (in the mountain districts of the South) is to have a funeral preached every two or three years for all the people who have died during that time. Each one is buried at the time of his death, but the preaching is reserved for a later day, when it is convenient for more people and more preachers to get there. Sometimes a man will be married again, and his second wife will be one of the chief mourners at his first wife's funeral preaching. This custom is dying out to some extent. The burying and preaching together are becoming more common.—Irene Hudson in the Atlantic Monthly.

unconscious. Commandeering an automobile he rushed them to the General hospital at Paterson.

Setterfield's case was diagnosed at once as "extremely critical." For two days his life hung in balance. As the little fellow accompanied by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Setterfield, walked out of the hospital, the surgeons who attended him shared his happiness.

Though William, his cousin, was less seriously wounded, he did not leave the hospital, being still confined to bed.

Sues Doctor Who Cut Up Son's Body.

Denver.—Declaring that the physician had no right to perform the autopsy, Mrs. Florence B. Loomis, mother of William C. Baker, has brought suit for $15,000 against Dr. Matt R. Root, who used the knife to determine the cause of the boy's death so he could report to the city authorities.

Boy Has Committed Nine Burglaries.

New York.—Fourteen years old, with nine burglaries already to his credit, was the record of which Howard Ward boasted when arrested. Howard and a chum, Oscar Anderson, were arrested after pedestrians said they had seen the boys at work on a safe in a shoe store.

ACCUSE FATHER OF FOUR MURDERS

burned their bodies in the home. And three other deaths, it is suspected, may be laid up against him.

But the most atrocious crime charged against Schutte is the murder of Joseph Ball, his wife and eighteen-year-old son, Jacob, in December, 1915. The charge has been made by the man's own son, Julius Schutte, who fled from home after the crime and enlisted in the navy in hopes of forgetting the shocking scene he witnessed on a cold December night.

Murder of Ball Family.

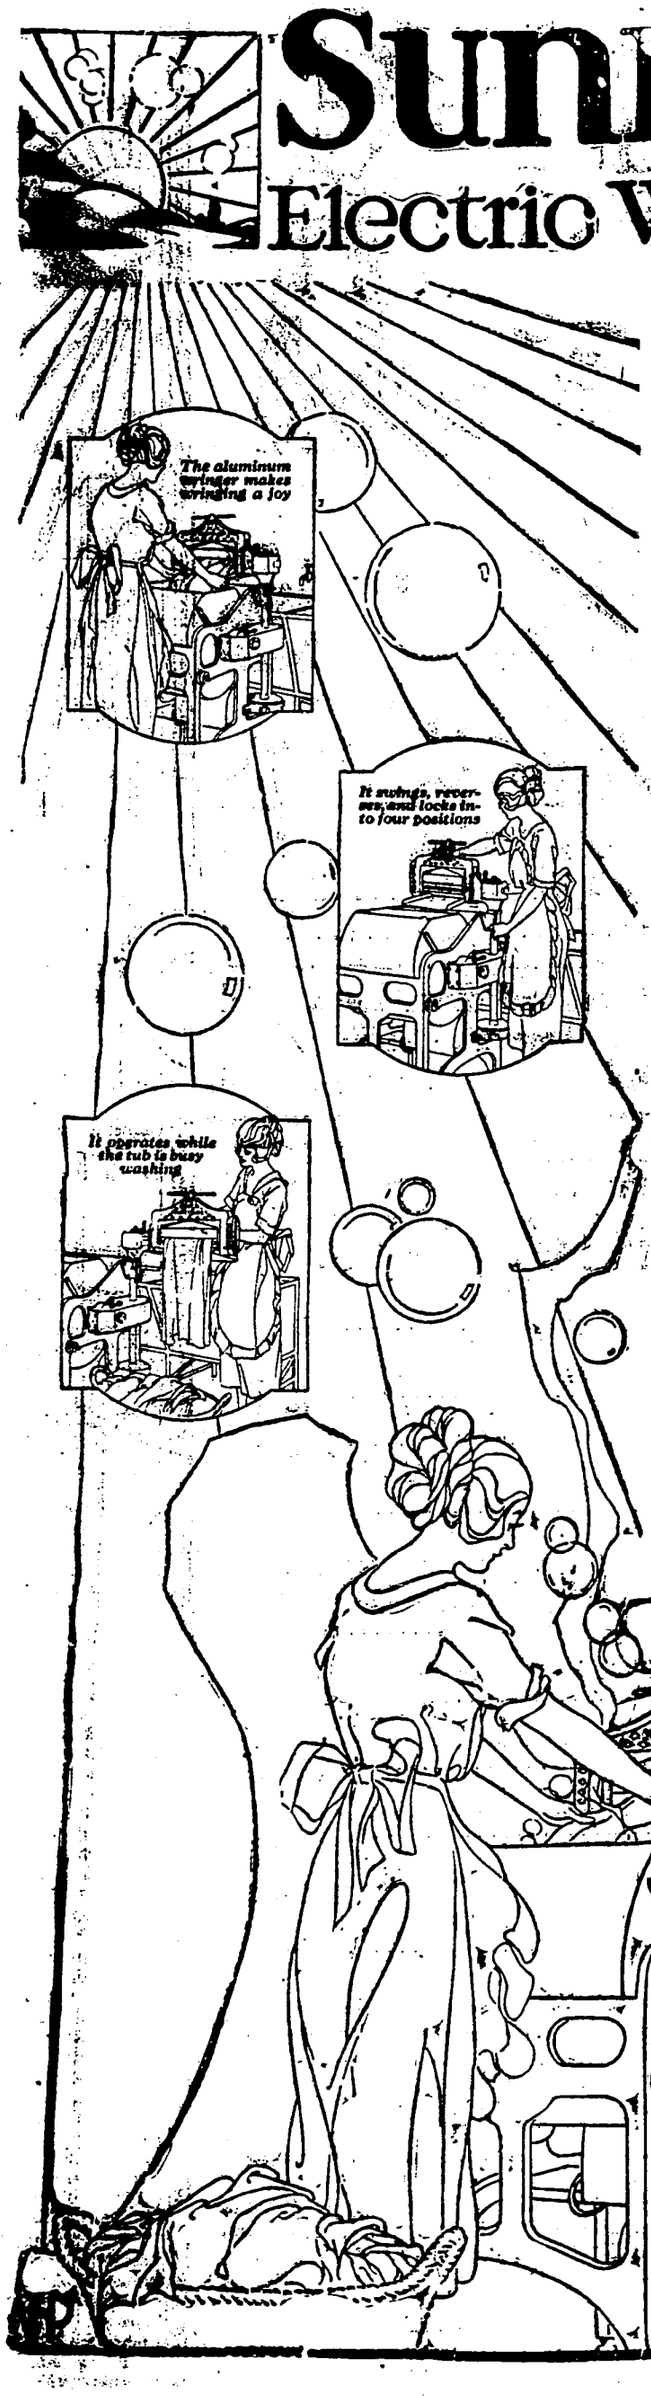

Joseph Ball was a Hungarian who had Anglicized his name. He lived in a little shack in a valley back of the Schutte home. On December 11, 1915, Julius says his father aroused him from sleep and ordered him to dress and accompany him. When they were ready to leave the house the father handed him a gun and carried one himself. Outside the door Schutte picked up a can of kerosene and a bag of shavings. Arrived close by the Ball shack the father ordered Julius to take up a position 25 feet from the door and shoot anyone who might leave the building. Then with the kerosene can and the shavings the old man started fires at each end of the shack and when the terrified inmates rushed out shot them down. One by one he carried the bodies within the shack, piled them one on the other and smiled as he watched them burn.

There had been bad blood between Schutte and Joseph Ball.

Three other deaths are now being investigated, one of them at least a plain murder.

CHAINS FOR TARDY MOTORISTS

The South Park police of Chicago have just been equipped with chains and when they find an automobile has been parked over thirty minutes, in violation of the city ordinance, they take one of the chains they are carrying and lock the car to one of the pretty electroliers that adorn the boulevard. The officers leave their card which informs the owner that he is on the "beat" and will be glad to release the car—after arranging for the owner to appear in court next morning. The photograph shows a policeman chaining up one of the machines that has overstayed its limit.

GOOD BRAKES OF BIG IMPORTANCE

They Are One of Most Excellent Forms of Guarding Against All Kinds of Accidents.

METHOD OF CURBING ENGINE

Emergency or Hand Brake Primarily Is to Hold Car When Standing and Secondarily to Use if Other Brake Gives Way.

By H. CLIFFORD BROKAW,
Technical Director West Side Y. M. C. A. Automobile Schools, New York City.

Better have good brakes on your car than an engine, if you have to choose between the two, for the brakes are the best form of accident insurance you can have. This indicates the relative importance of the two car features. You might have the highest type of engine with unlimited power under the hood, but if you haven't also some means of curbing your high stepper and tethering it at will you are in for it. "Whoa" won't stop it either. You might better be driving an untamed broncho of the plains. The engine will get you there, it is true, but if there be no means of stopping you may go too eternally far.

The car has two sets of brakes—emphasizing the importance—and occasionally a car has more. The emergency or hand brake consists of a brake band operating within a drum on each rear wheel, connected by rods and levers to the hand lever, which has a ratchet and pawl so that it may be locked in position. This brake primarily is to hold the car when standing and secondarily to use in running if the other brake gives way or for alternating on long hills.

Operation of Foot Brake.

The foot brake, called running or service brake, is operated by a pedal, with a spring to release it when pressure on the pedal is removed, and is connected by other rods and levers to brake bands operating on the outside of the rear wheel drums, or occasionally upon a separate drum on the propeller shaft. The latter gives greater breaking power, because of the rear axle gearing leverage back of the brake, and the second drum helps prevent overheating on long hills. But this type brake does put a severe strain on the rear axle gears.

Both brakes should be kept in such condition that either will stop the car quickly. Do not let one set remain out of order just because you know the other is all right. The other might go bad just when needed.

Brake bands are lined with non-burning friction material, usually an asbestos fabric, fastened to the steel bands by copper rivets, the heads of which are counter-sunk deep into the lining, to keep the heads from contact with the drum. If the lining is allowed to wear thin the copper rivet heads score the drum into shallow grooves, lessening the braking power. Such must be turned true on a lathe if they are to be worth much for braking purposes.

Renew Brake Lining.

Equally important is the renewal of the brake lining before it is worn thin enough to expose the rivets to friction. Better have this done at the service station. It is a particular and tedious job. It is possible, however, to get the right size linings and proper rivets at almost any supply house. Remove the brake bands, punch out the old rivets, noticing how they were put in, and go to it. Remember that the rivet heads must be countersunk deep into the lining and every rivet set up tight. It requires patience but can be done by the novice.

The brake lining I

lubrication is not desirable, but every other place on the brake and linkage where there is motion should be lubricated regularly according to the manufacturer's lubrication chart, and be cleaned likewise. There is considerable wear to the clevises and pins; they may be renewed for a few cents and should not be allowed to wear to the danger point; besides, worn linkage rattles.

DRAG DISABLED CARS WITH RIGID TOW-BAR

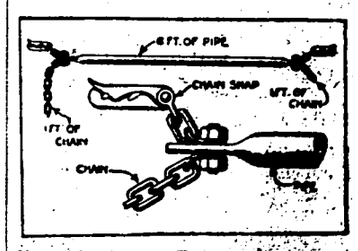

Piece of Rope or Tire Chain Are Not Suitable.

In Case of Sudden Stop Towed Machine Runs Into Rear End of Pilot and Both Vehicles Are Unnecessarily Injured.

Invariably when an automobile has broken down in the streets or on the road, the owner of a small garage will send the first available car, equipped with a piece of rope or tire chain that he may have on hand, to the scene of the breakdown to tow in the derelict. The driver of the towing-car has frequently an exciting time, especially when it is necessary for him to drag the broken-down car through city streets with much traffic. When he is compelled to make a sudden stop the towed car will often run into the rear end of the pilot and both cars are damaged.

All this can be avoided if the owner of the garage is provided with a rigid tow-bar for dragging the disabled vehicle through the streets. A rigid bar is by far the best means, as it keeps the two cars at a fixed distance from each other. Regardless of the conditions of the brakes of the disabled car, it will come to a stop when the towing-car stops.

In the accompanying illustration a tow-bar is shown which can be made from a six-foot section of one-inch wrought-iron pipe, two short pieces of chain, two bolts, and two tire-chain snaps. The pipe is flattened at each end, and chains and snaps are attached by bolts through drilled holes in the flattened ends. If no iron pipe is available, a correspondingly heavier wooden bar may be used to the ends of which the chains and harness hooks are attached.—C. A. Luers in Popular Science Monthly.

Graphic Stories Of World's Greatest Airship Disaster Told By Survivors Of The Big ZR-2

British Flight Commander, Among The Rescued Tells Of Sudden Crack Of Girders And Explosion In Mid-Air. American Survivor Recounts Rescue From A Watery Grave

Hull, Eng., Aug. 25.—The most graphic stories of the greatest disaster in the history of the air, when the ZR-2, world's largest dirigible, exploded, burst in two and fell flaming into the river Humber, carrying 16 Americans and 27 British to their death, were told to the United Press today by Flight Lt. A. H. Wann, commander of the airship, and Norman O. Walker, the only American saved.

"The whole thing happened in five seconds," Flight Lt. Wann, lying in Hull hospital, said. "My ship was running beautifully at 60 knots as we swung over Hull. Our tests were nearly finished and we hoped to be down soon. I had just signalled the speed be reduced fifty knots when I suddenly heard a terriffic crack. I believe that several girders must have broken. The ship buckled and the explosion followed."

The cause of the explosion will probably never be known, the commander said.

American Survivor Tells Story.

Norman Walker, of Commerce, Tex., the only American saved, told the United Press "No one will ever have a clear idea of just what happened. I was with two Britishers at the extreme tail of the ZR-2. When the explosion shook the ship and she broke in two, our half fell tail downward.

Floated Downward.

"The three of us hung on and we floated down toward mid river almost like a big bird settling onto the water. It was almost like having a parachute. I looked down, and saw the water rushing up at us and when we were about thirty feet from the surface I let go and dropped. I thought I would never come up but when I did there were tugs and boats already speeding to rescue work. The ship could scarcely have been in the water thirty seconds before they were on the job.

"I feel fine personally. I smoked a cigarette immediately after they pulled me out."

Thousands were gathered on the river front at dawn watching the search for bodies.

The ZR-2 was invisible, both halves being completely covered by the tide. Preliminary work of salvage was under way. The searching parties worked all night lest there should still be someone alive in the wreckage.

Federal Troops Sought To Stop March Of Miners Army

Washington, D. C., Aug. 25.—An emergency appeal was made to the War Department today by Governor Morgan, of West Virginia, for 1,000 Federal troops to keep 5,000 armed miners from entering Mingo county and Logan county mine fields.

Miners' Army on March

Charleston, W. Va., Aug. 25.—5000 miners, many of them armed, were reported this afternoon to be marching from Marmet, 12 miles east of here toward the Mingo and Logan county mine fields in protest of martial law there.

Reports of the Governor's office said the miners were marching like a veritable army, commandeering stores as they advance. Some were said to be walking and some riding in automobiles. Advices from Logan said a citizen's army of 500 were arming to resist their advance into that county, and an armed clash is feared.

Citizens who telephone state authorities gave them reports of the most sensational character regarding the march. There were rumors the miners had seized railway trains and that where resistance was shown the miners opened fire.

4000 Reach Boone County

4000 miners, marching in protest were reported to have reached Racine, Boone county, according to information received here. It is reported that many of the miners were accidentally killed by the fire of their own guards while in camp at Marmet.

SEVERAL POSTAL JOBS IN COUNTY MAY BE OPEN

Civil Service Commission Will Hold Examinations For DuBois, Osceola Mills And Winburne Postmasterships.

The Civil Service Commission has been requested by the Postoffice Department to hold examinations of applicants for appointment as postmaster at the following places in Clearfield County:

DuBois, Osceola Mills and Winburne.

It is the policy of the new administration to allow postmasters serving one term to remain unmolested until their time expires, but in the case of all officers who have had their noses in the public feed bag for eight years, or two terms, they will "turn the rascals out," or at least make them stand a competitive examination if they expect to hang onto the job any longer.

The postmasters at the points affected by this order, all of whom have served two terms are. DuBois, Con Allen; Osceola, A. E. Brown; Winburne, Max Crain.

CANADIAN VESSEL SINKS OFF MOUTH OF COLUMBIA RIVER–LIFEBOAT IS MISSING

Seattle, Washington, August 25.—Her hold filling with water from some unknown cause, the Canadian Government Steamer, "Canadian Importer," sank today off the Washington Coast, according to wireless reports received here. Part of the wrecked vessel's crew was taken on board the "Cardova," which rushed to the rescue in response to wireless calls for help.

Death List May Reach Forty.

San Francisco, California, August 25.—It is feared that a death list as high as forty may result from the sinking of the steamer 625 miles southwest of the Columbia River. Word was received here that the rescuing ship, "Cardova," carrying part of the crew, had left the scene of the wreck and was making for Portland.

A previous dispatch to the Harbor Commission stated one of the lifeboats believed to have contained forty persons, was still missing.

DOLLAR DAY RUSH IS EXPECTED TO FILL THE CLEARFIELD STORES

Merchants Making Every Preparation To Take Care Of Big Crowd Expected Here On Friday

Clearfield's LIVE merchants are all set for Dollar Day, which is scheduled for tomorrow. Shelves and counters in the different stores are bulging over with bargains while the different show windows contain exhibits or samples of some of the many good things to be found inside.

This Dollar Day is going to be a record breaker in every way, if one is to judge from surface indications. During the past few years the dollar has not had very much purchasing value, but drop into any of Clearfield's live stores tomorrow and see what it is possible to purchase now with one dollar. It will be a pleasant surprise to all bargain hunters.

Clearfield merchants never made such preparations for any previous sale event as have been made for this semi annual Dollar Day and you will profit thereby by reading the different advertisements in The Progress, making mental note of the articles which you need and then be on hand early to avoid the rush when the doors open for business Friday morning.

The Progress guarantees in every way this Dollar Day and the merchandise bargains offered by the different merchants participating herein.

In addition to the list of merchants published in The Progress last evening the following will enter into the Dollar Day spirit.

Fred A. Dale and the Reliable store.

The new Fullington Bus Company's schedule is going to be particularly advantageous for the folks from Woodland, Wallaceton, Bigler and Blue Ball as the new schedule will enable prospective shoppers to come to this city.

Mr. Fullington assures the Progress man that if traffic warrants he will put on extra busses and thus take care of the vast crowds that are expected here tomorrow.

The bus line to Curwensville also offers an additional mode of conveyance to augument the train service between this city and Curwensville.

A CORRECTION

In the Dollar Day advertisement of the A. W. Leonardson Co., there appears an item, "Any trimmed hat in the store on Dollar Day at $1". This should read "Any Spring and summemr hat in the Store $1. In another place it is advertised, "4 pairs of 25 cent hose for $1" These are a regular 35 cent hose.

In the advertisement of Leitzinger Bros. there appears an item offering Children's Gingham Aprons at a special price. This should have read "Children's Gingham DRESSES," a still greater offer than the error made it appear.

SOLDIER MEMORIAL COMMITTEE HAS BEEN APPOINTED

Public Minded Citizens Believe Time Has Come To Revive Project.

More than a year ago a meeting was held in Clearfield for the purpose of inaugurating a movement looking to the building of a suitable memorial to commemorate the services of Clearfield county's soldiers, sailors and Marines in the world war.

At this meeting Judge Singleton Bell was empowered to appoint a committee of representative citizens to handle such a project. Judge Bell recently made this appointment as his statement given below will show:

"Some time ago preliminary steps were taken looking toward the construction of a Memorial which should properly commemorate the services and sacrifices of those who served in the World War, but for various reasons it was felt best to wait for a time when no other project would divide public interest That time has arrived and to bring about definite action it is advisable that a representative committee be appointed to consider the subject and take such further steps as they may decide upon.

To this end the following persons are requested to act as such committee and to meet at the call of the chairman.

Fred B. Kerr, chairman, of the American Legion; John M. Chase, of the Borough Officers; M. E. Farrell, of the County officers,; Mrs. Geo B. Reed, Mrs. H. Clark Thayer, Mrs. S. J. Waterworth, of the Women; H. B. Powell, Chas T. urtz Walter Welch, R. C. Reeve, G. A. Stewart, John C. Forsyth, of the Citizens

CLOSING OF PLANT DISEASE EXPERIMENTAL LABORATORY WILL BE FELT BY FARMERS

Pennsylvania farmers in general, and vegetable growers in particular, will directly feel a great loss through the enforced closing of the insect and plant disease experimental laboratory established in 1918 at Girard, Erie county, by the Pennsylvania State College. According to County Agent Sterrett, the college failed to receive sufficient funds from the State for agricultural research work, and increased costs make it necessary to remove the two specialists at Girard on October 1st, thereby removing a source of valuable information to Pennsylvania agriculture.

Instead of cutting down on this field laboratory work, the county agent declares that the college should by all means be allowed to expand its research to every general soil type and climatic condition in the State. In the three years that work has been under way at Girard, sufficient discoveries have been made to warrant continued effort. J. M. Muncie, the pathologist there, has found the leaf spot of tomato, a serious disease in that section, can be controlled by copper sprays, such as Bordeaux mixture. An unnamed bacterial disease last year reduced the tomato crop in Erie county twenty-five per cent. It has been studied for two years but the work is not yet completed and will have to be dropped. Canker and wilt disease investigations will also be cut off in the middle of experiments for their control. Farmers will continue to loose valuable crops until the State provides for the re-opening of the laboratory, and the resumption of this work.

Studies of insect pests that annually cause great losses must be dropped, the county agent continues. J. R. Eyer, the entomologist, has discovered means for the control of the onion root maggot, thereby permitting growers to plan large plantings which they were unable to do before, due to the certainty of great loss. Control of potato leaf hoppers in two years has saved farmers great destruction and given increased tuber production. Plans for investigations of state-wide importance were underway, but will have to be abandoned for the lack of a few thousand dollars.

PASTURE IMPROVEMENT

Some valuable information relative to pasture improvement has come to County Agent Sterrett from extension specialists at the Pennsylvania State College who have just completed work on a bulletin on pasture experiments with the aid of county extension representatives. Excellent results have been obtained from the use of lime, acid phosphate and clover seed.

The permanent pasture problem is at times a most difficult one, but sowing fresh seed without improving the fertility is generally useless. Manure, when available, gives a good return on pastures; lime, phosphate or manure may be applied either in spring or fall, as most convenient. If seed is sown during the summer, it should be harrowed in.

In the course of the demonstration, some almost worthless hill pastures in Green county were treated with 1200 pounds of hydrated lime, or a ton of ground limestone per acre applied in the spring of 1920, with 300 pounds of acid phosphate. Clover and grass seed were sown, a good crop of clover hay was cut last fall and there is a good stand of clover and grass this Summer. In other instances lime and phosphate were put on sods that were constantly pastured, and the white clover has come in and thickened up wonderfully. Livestock show a great preference for the treated plots, practically doubled in productivity. Fertilized and lime treatment for pastures is recommended by the county agent at least once in five years.

"YALLER" DOGS WILL HOWL AT TYRONE SATURDAY NIGHT

The biggest thing on the schedule over Blair county way for some time to come is the gathering of the Association of Yellow Dogs of Blair county which will be held at Tyrone on Saturday evening, Aug. 29th, when it is expected that more than one thousand purps of various degrees will foregather around the ancient relic of the tribe for the annual "bone gnaw."

In speaking of the affair last night's Altoona Mirror says:

"Polysyllabic profundity, pompous prolixity, pistacious vacuity and valoquent vapidity will be sedulously avoided and an evening of rare entertainment and peaceful gnawing will feature the evening with the out casts of northern Blair as hosts.

So much pleasure is gained by gathering around the ancient relic that many notables from other sections of the state will be present. Judge Singleton Bell, of Clearfield, and Professor Grant Norris of Curwensville have been lured back to the county for a friendly growl and Attorney Robert W. Smith, of Hollidaysburg and Rev. A. C. Van Saun, of East Freedom have expressed their intentions of being present to discuss some of the important phases of dogdom."

Indians Have Curious Numeration.

The Indians of Guiana have a curious system of numeration. They count by the hand and its four fingers. Thus, when they reach five, instead of saying so, they call it a "hand." Six is therefore a "hand and first finger"; seven, a "hand and second finger." Ten is "two hands." But 20, instead of being "four hands," is a "man." Forty is "two men," and thus they go on by twenties. Forty-six is expressed as "two men, a hand and first finger."

The Romance of the Pearl.

The romance which surrounds the pearl is as old as history. Cleopatra dissolved and swallowed a pearl valued at $400,000 in honor of Antony. Sir Thomas Gresham dining with Queen Elizabeth, dissolved a pearl worth $50,000 and drank it.

ODDS AND ENDS AND THINGS

"By Skinsey"

Women of today are one and a half inch taller and a class than 40 years ago, according to William Hermann, a physical training expert of this city. Their chests are larger their waist lines widened. Their muscles have been hardened and their running gears become more exposed to the elements.

WHY PROHIBITION DOES NOT PROHIBIT

Whiskey is being sold today across 3,500 bars in Chicago, in addition to the vast amount that is being peddled in bottles, jugs and gasoline cans, by waiters, taxi drivers, chauffeurs, porters—a great motley army of retail bootleggers .

An analysis of the Chicago "wet" situation, based on direct investigation and interviewes with John Kjellander the new Federal Prohibition Director for Illinois, shows three outstanding obstacles in the way of an immediate more rigid enforcement of the Volstead law.

First is the clogged condition of the courts, in which 2,000 bootlegging cases are pending. When new arrests are made, the offenders are released on bond, and frequently continue their criminal operations pending the indefinite date of trial

Second is the limited field force of the Federal Prohibition office there. The director has only seventeen men on his Chicago "blotter squad" and thirty-nine men in the whole State

Third is the red tape surrounding the procedure by which arrests can be made.

* * * *

Local authorities in Clearfield county are doing more to curb illegal liquor making and selling than all the Prohibition enforcement officers the State over , judging from the returns thus far.

Jim Nesbit, a South Carolina negro, serving in a chain gang on a murder charge, escaped the other day and the fiercest bloodhound in the State was placed on his trail. The hound ran true to form and trailed the negro to his lair. The officers following the trail hurried into a swamp where the dog was baying fiercely and found that the wily coon had Simon Legreed the hound and tied him to a tree, continuing his getaway.

HENRY MUST BE CRAZY

Henry Ford, after purchasing the Detroit, Toledo & Ironton Railroad, and making it the most prosperous road in the country after its former owners were unable to make it pay, has addressed a letter to the railroads of the country requesting them to participate in a reduction of freight rates for the general good of business and their own future property

One reply received to the request stated the matter of rates would be left to the Interstate Commerce Commission, which would "undoubtedly order a general reduction in due time."

The Harding administration put its foot down on all movements to make its diplomacy any more open than were the Versailles negotiations, which the Republicans denounced in Congress and on the stump because of their alleged secrecy. This goes for the absolute silence regarding what is going on in Berlin in framing the treaty with Germany and for the prospective proceedings of the Disarmament Conference.

MANAGER DRIGGS OPENS SEASON WITH MAMMOTH MINSTREL OFFERING

Manager Driggs of the Driggs Theatre today officially opened the Fall and Winter theatrical season in Clearfield by presenting to the theatre going public a good old fashioned minstrel show dressed up in new frills—Gus Hill's and Honey Boy Evans' Minstrels.

Each of these shows, when working alone in former years had a wide following, and combined they are said to present a showing second to none in the minstrelsy world.

The big show arrived here from Altoona this morning. At noon they paraded the down town and business sections of the city, and gave a concert at the Court house corner.

Manager Williams, who is travelling with the minstrel men here, said he is convinced he has as fine a bunch of comedians as a manager could want—if he is satisfied it must be taken as an indication it is a good show.

After tonight's performance they leave for Lock Haven, ending up the week there and then going to Scranton for a two day run.

The result of this test shows that the greatest number of rainy days had occurred in these two decades in years when St. Swithin's day was dry.

GOOD ROADS IN DEMAND

The recent announcement that concrete laying on the Woodland-Blue Ball State Road had been completed, was welcome news to many who have been obliged to use that route in the past few years. Time was, not many years ago, when the existing detour road would have been considered an excellent one, but the motor car's universality seems to have revolutionized the demand for better roads. Half the enjoyment of a long motor trip is stolen if even a comparatively short stretch of bad road is encountered.

The people of this county are foremost in their demands for good roads. Only last week a local constable served notice on a road supervisor that steps be taken at once to repair a township road or legal action would ensue. Clearfield county has a considerable share of the state's improved highways, but there is room for vast improvement. The people of this county have backed to the limit, by their actions at the polls, moves to better existing road systems. It is to be hoped there will be no let-up until every community in the county is linked together with a chain of improved roads, ones that will really stand up under traffic and not be in need of constant repair. The state has made arrangements to take care of the main highways. It is up to the county and townships to do the rest.

With the coming of the primaries voters in some districts will be asked to re-consider road bond issues which were declared void due to legal phraseology. As soon as these matters are cleared up the Commissioners will be able to lay plans for the betterment of county highways, and have everything in readiness to get a flying start on the work next spring, it is hoped.

When completed, such a highway system as is contemplated in Clearfield county will promote business by making it far easier for those residing in the outlying districts to bring their produce to market and for city shopkeepers to deliver their goods in the country. It will put the farmer in the same relative buying position as his city brother, and will increase the value of lands tapped by these roads.

Good roads, in short, are as a rule worth much more than they cost, and the people are showing good business judgment in demanding them.

BRITAIN'S BROKEN BLIMP
(Pittsburgh Dispatch)

Whether the disaster to the gigantic blimp ZR-2 will forbid further attempts to make practical such huge ships of the air, is questionable, not withstanding the loss in money and the greater loss in life among the mixed crew of British and Americans aboard. Builders of war machinery have gone to the furthest limits in size, although warned from time to time by results similar to that which overtook the ZR-2 on her trial trip. Former "largest ever built" dirigibles have broken and given other evidences of their failure to safely construct gas bags of extraordinary dimensions for air service. The loss of the latest largest "air ship" ever assembled is simply corroborative evidence that the limit in hughness has been exceeded.

Warning of the irremediable weakness of the ZR-2 was given a week ago by a London newspaper, which declared that the secret could no longer be kept in view of the arrival of the American crew to take her to America across the Atlantic. The imperative trial before delivery to the Yankee buyer, this newspaper explained, had been delayed because the big machine was unfitted to go into the air because of fatal construction defects. It was asserted openly that serious doubt existed if the ZR-2 could go high into the air and if she did, whether the gigantic gas tank could be brought back to earth Bent girders and strained lattice work were mentioned specifically as the vital weakness of the machine, since engine trouble need not necessarily endanger ship or crew.

While official technical investigation will be awaited for the exact facts and final judgment suspended, the breaking in two of the big ship seems to be presumptive testimony that the London paper knew what it was talking about. Now the question forces itself in for recognition and answer whether structural defects such as bent girders and strained lattice work can be escaped in assembling an air craft of such proportions The big blimp is gradually elminating itself as a factor of reliability in warfare. We have escaped getting a huge "lemon," but at the cost of American lives worth more than all the world-beating dirigibles that ever will be built.

Now that the government of Panama has assured the United States it will not start things popping in Central America, the advocates of war can put their swords back in their little felt cases and the 400 Marines, sent rushing to the scene, can breath a little easier. It's easy enough to start a war, but even a little war where only 400 of our soldiers are involved, costs money.

The Prohibition Enforcement agents claim they have a rum-running armada bottled up in Chesapeake Bay. The rum runners evidently have something better than that bottled up.

Even the boxing promoters in New York State have taken to lobbying. Their latest achievement is a rule by the State Boxing Commission that scrappers will have to take their chance on the gate receipts—promoters are no longer permitted to offer guarantees It's a tough life us scrappers lead. This rule has no effect on editors, however. At least, we've never received any guarantee on any of our scraps. We just have to take what's coming to us, or back water.

It is said that the great Italian poet Francesco Petrarch, died, almost exactly to the day, 70 years after his birth There seem to be conflicting dates regarding his precise day of birth and death, although the variance is very little One account says that he died July 19, 1374.—Chicago Journal.

OSCEOLA STEELERS TAKE GAME FROM CLEARFIELD TEAM

Two Three Baggers, Coupled With Home Run That Clears The Bases, Prove Too Much Against Terriers.

"Fighting Jack" Onslow and his Osceola Steelers were with us again yesterday afternoon and a real baseball game was the result. It was a red-hot, sizzling contest, the Steelers coming from behind in the sixth and winning the game when they put over seven runs. The final tally was Osceola, 8; Clearfield, 6.

Hard One To Lose.

It goes like pulling teeth to lose a game to the Osceola scrappers, but this one was doubly hard to let go of for the reason that we should have won it hands down. The breaks were all against us from start to finish, not excepting those made by the umpire.

One Bad Inning For Taylor.

Lefty Taylor pitched great ball for our side in all but one of the nine innings, but this one inning was a whole ball game. After holding the enemy scoreless to the sixth, Knetzer opened that fruitful session with a fly to right which Russell got under at the edge of the track and as he reached for the ball he fell over the bank to the track and the hit which should have been an out went for three bases. Tyson then slammed one to the track in right and Knetzer counted. Morpeth's single scored Tyson. Edmons walked. Shaw followed with a single and on Gill's bunt Taylor fell in fielding it and threw wild to first, filling the bases. Pearce then got Taylor out of the hole by poling the ball out of the lot, four more runs coming across the plate on the homer. Onslow then hit to Getz and was out at first, while Taylor fanned Rudolph and Knetzer.

The visitors annexed another run when Zerfluh fielded Tyson's hit to third and threw wild to first, allowing Tyson to get to second. He advanced to third on Morpeth's out and scored on Edmonson's sacrifice fly.

Knetzer Gets Bumps.

The mighty Knetzer, who has been having some fun with our sluggers, got his bumps in this game and was forced to give way to Taylor in the seventh inning, after fourteen hits and five runs had been garnered off him.

Hoffman's single and Russell's three bagger scored a run in the second. Another was added in the fourth on singles by Harris and Hoffman and a double by Zerfluh. Three were put over in the sixth when Harris singled and Hoffman doubled and then Crossin, Zerfluh, Russell and Spiers singled in a row.

Taylor Takes Up Battle.

That ended Knetzer and Manager Onslow sent Taylor to the mound in the seventh. After Getz had fanned Harris singled and went to third on Hoffman's single, from where he talled on Crossin's sacrifice fly to second. That ended our run getting, although things looked dark for Taylor in the ninth when, after Hoffman had flied out to right Crossin and Zerfluh singled in succession, but Russell hit into a double play and the "dog was dead."

THIS TIME LAST YEAR

The Red Sox finished series with the Indians by winning four out of five games.

Kirchner pitched his first game for the Cards, and was beaten by the Giants.

Alexander was bumped for twelve singles, but the Braves got only two runs.

* * * * * *

The Blossburg Champs, with a record of but seven defeats in 35 games will be here tomorrow.

Picked Up Along Third Base Line

THE SIXTH INNING

How Right Fielder Russell must have felt in the fatal sixth yesterday when three-baggers and home runs began to ram over the race track. "Up and Over" was the motto of the Steelers in this frame.

The House of David ball club will play Janesville at the latter place on Sunday next. The House of David team represents a religious sect out near Battle Creek Mich, which does not believe in using razor or scissors and the players cavort about the ball field in flowing hair and whiskers. They are fine players and have been many of the strong independent teams throughout the country.

The Terriers go to Indiana Saturday afternoon for a game with Rube Hagerty's much strengthened Indiana team.

Manager Hoffman may have been with Napoleon on his march on Moscow as some envious Philipsburgh fans allege, but he can sure sack that "ol apple." He laced out four real bingles yesterday

The Blossburg champions of the Northern Tier counties will meet the locals at the driving park Friday afternoon. Blossburg is rated as the fastest independent team in the northern part of the State and the game should be a good one.

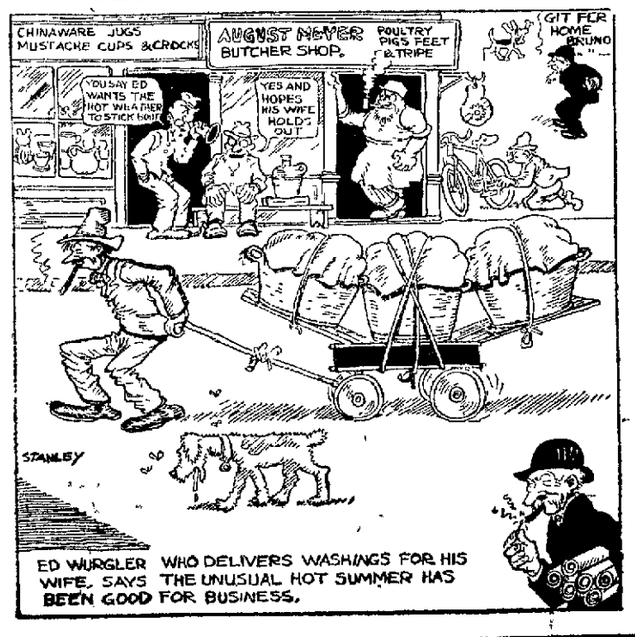

The bleachers had an enjoyable afternoon razzing Jack Onslow, but that was only half of the battle, the scrappy Jack is some hand with the conversation himself.

Callahan's one-handed running catch in right centre in the Mt. Union game was a peach and will not be equalled on any field in many a moon.

Getz at second was a real stonewall on the defense yesterday.

Russell was the busiest man in town in that fatal sixth.

Spiers certainly hit the ball hard yesterday, but had the hardest kind of hard luck. His titanic smash to right in the eighth which would have won the game went over the fence foul by inches only.

BASE BALL SUNDAY

Janesville VS The House Of David

The House of David is a barnstorming ball team that puts up a real article of baseball. They will prove a foe worthy of Janesville's best efforts.

IF YOU'RE FROM OUT OF TOWN AND ARE GOING TO BE HERE FOR THE GREAT DOLLAR DAY WHY NOT EAT AT JORDAN'S

A poultry culling demonstration meeting is advertised to be held at the home of W. T. Wink, on the old Robert Neeper farm near Chestnut Ridge on Tuesday, August 30th. Prof. D. M. Gray, one of the State College faculty, will be present and discourse on the subject.

The Steeler fielders played so far out that they had to send a boy out for them at the close of the innings. Joe doubble crossed them by chopping three singles over the infield.

NEWS OF OUR NEIGHBORS

CURWENSVILLE

D. C. Scott, of Detroit, Mich., came in on Tuesday and expects to spend some time with friends near town.

Prof. Norris, who will have charge of the borough schools for the term of 1921-22, has been in town several days this week arranging details for the opening week. He is thoroughly conversant with advanced high school work, which is an indication that the schools will be placed on a higher educational plane than they have been enjoying for the past two or three years. Some few changes will be made in the manner of instruction in some of the grade departments from last term, which will be a great help to the pupils.

Rev. and Mrs. Collins, who have been away from town enjoying a two weeks' vacation, arrived home last evening having been greatly benefited by their play hours and visit among friends in the East. The usual church services will be held on Sunday, morning and evening.

Persons interested in the Plainview cemetery (known by many as the Quaker graveyard) located on the Hartzfield farm two miles from town, have had men at work and had that burial field put in some sort of presentable shape, by having grass, weeds and brush removed and other work done. This is one of the oldest cemeteries in this end of the county. A charter has been issued for it to persons who will see that it is kept in some kind of shape from now on.

Captain Crawford, whose specialty is selling bonds, interviewed some of Curwensville's financiers this week. He represents the firm of Frederick Pierce & Co., New York.

Today is Fruit Hill picnic anniversary and in consequence a number of Curwensville folks took a day off and hied themselves to that vicinity for a day of amusement and pleasure. The attendance was large and all were made to feel "to hum."

Blain City came to Curwensville today and met the American Legion team on Athletic grounds. Tuesday afternoon the Woodland club was here and suffered defeat by a score of 11 to 1.

Monday the Stronach brick yard started to work a six day turn in full. From a reliable source it was learned this yard would now continue to operate in full to the end of the year at least.

In enumerating the list of nominations for borough office in Wednesday's letter, we inadvertently neglected to mention that Charles Sawtelle and Bert Woodward, Republicans, and Ed. Gallaher, Democrat, will appear on the ballot as aspirants for the tax collectorship.

John Farley and son, John Farley, Jr., came from their home in Ashland, O., Tuesday to Curwensville in an auto and will visit at the home of Frank Farley for several days. It is about forty odd years since the first named gentleman left this section for the West.

A corn roast was held at the Pee Wee's Nest Tuesday evening by a group of young people. All claim a good time.

Nautical Terms.

Gross tonnage is obtained by dividing the whole cubical capacity of a ship by 100, that many English cubic feet representing a ton. Net tonnage is the gross tonnage less deduction for machinery, crew and other spaces not used for passengers or cargo. Deadweight tonnage or tonnage [illegible] is the number of tons which can be carried in the holds when the vessel is charged to the load-water line. Displacement tonnage used with reference to warships is the actual weight of sea water displaced by the vessel when charged with all its weight to the load-water line.

Improvement Always Mutual.

No improvement that takes place in either of the sexes can be confined to itself; each is a universal mirror to each; and the respective refinement of the one will be in reciprocal proportion to the polish of the other. —Colton.

LIPTON WILL HAVE TO WAIT YEARS TO LIFT CUP

By HENRY L. FARRELL
(United Press Staff Correspondent.)

New York, Aug. 25.—It will be several years before Sir Thomas Lipton gets another chance for America's cup—if he wants one.

Recent activities of the titled tea king in England indicate that he has not given up the ambition of his life to own the fastest yacht in the world, and that he may challenge the New York Yacht Club for another race next summer.

In a period when money is not just the loosest thing on the market, a million-dollar yacht race is not the best thing to get back to normalcy, and for that reason the New York Yacht Club probably will discourage any attempt for another race next year, according to opinion prevalent here.

The yacht club speaks officially and it cannot discuss a challenge until it has been received, but, nevertheless, prominent members of the club have expressed the individual opinion that the cup will be kept on the shelf for at least two more years.

Lipton is said to be considering plans now for another addition to the Shamrock family of challengers. When he failed in his million-dollar venture to beat Resolute last summer and win the cup, it was thought that he would be through. But he is persistent.

Two of his Shamrocks are now high and dry at Jacob's shipyard, City Island. They will remain there, however, it is believed, and a new Shamrock will be built and sailed over to compete in the next race.

For the same reason that an American Cup race is not probable in 1922, it is logical to believe that King Albert's Cup race across the Atlantic will not be on the 1922 program.

Attempts to stage the race this summer from Sandy Hook to Ostend, received a polite and courteous frown from American yachtsmen, who took the stand that the race would cost too much money and the investment of such big sums in a pure sporting event would not tend to bring the country back to its feet.

Carfare and Interest.

The story goes that John Hopkins, the founder of the university that bears his name, was accustomed even when of venerable years and more or less infirm of body to walk to his office. Questioned by a friend as to why he did this, he replied: "I never forget that a carfare represents an entire year's interest on a dollar. The interest on a dollar is worth saving."

LEATHER BELTING

There is no question that high grade leather is the best belting for some drives. During the war and for some time afterward the cost of leather products was so excessive that we didn't attempt to sell leather belting where anything else could be used.

Leather is now one of the materials on which there has been real price reduction. As a result leather belting is back almost to pre-war figures and again deservees consideration from a price as well as a quality standpoint.

We have renewed our stocks and can give you the very highest grade at surprisingly low cost. We also have leather belt dressing.

To Make These Tests

There are 12 vital tests used by automotive engineers in judging cars. Their method is now available to the public—simplified but conclusive.

No man can really make genuine comparisons without employing this method. All other ways are superficial and frequently mislead.

To further introduce this new and approved method of comparison, we announce a second annual

Marmon Demonstration Week

This provides an occasion for every car owner in this city to know the remarkable qualities of the Marmon 34, as Marmon owners know them.

This invitation is open to all—please do not hesitate even though you are not in the market for a car. Our aim is to familiarize all car owners with this new method of comparing cars by score card. Those who accept our invitation will not be importuned to buy. Telephone now and arrange for the appointment. The demonstration will start either from our headquarters or from your home or office, whichever is most convenient for you.

SO WEAK SO NERVOUS

How Miserable This Woman Was Until She Took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Toomsboro, Ga.—"I suffered terribly with backache and headache all the time, was so weak and nervous I didn't know what to do, and could not do my work. My trouble was deficient and irregular periods. I read in the papers what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had done for others and decided to give it a trial. I got good results from its use so that I am now able to do my work. I recommend your Vegetable Compound to my friends who have troubles similar to mine and you may use these facts as a testimonial."—Mrs. C. F. Phillips, Toomsboro, Ga.

Weak, nervous women make unhappy homes, their condition irritates both husband and children. It has been said that nine-tenths of the nervous prostration, nervous despondency, "the blues," irritability and backache arise from some displacement or derangement of a woman's system. Mrs. Phillips' letter clearly shows that no other remedy is so successful in overcoming this condition as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

SWIMS RIVER TO GET FUGITIVES

Sheriff Makes Sensational Capture of Two Men Charged With Murder.

ARE CAUGHT IN TRAP

Carrying Revolver in His Teeth Deputy Swims Stream and Lands Suspects After Battle in Which Many Shots Are Exchanged.

Cheyenne, Wyo.—Pursued to an island in the middle of the North Platte river, with armed posses waiting on either bank of the stream, Abraham Sanisito and Felipe Blanco, wanted here for the murder of Joe Cordova, were driven from their hiding place by an undersheriff, who swam the river with a six-shooter, and were captured after a battle.

The two men were brought back here to face the charge of murder. They are alleged to have shot Cordova to death during an altercation.

Following their flight from here the pair were traced to Bridgeport, Neb., by a posse under Sheriff Duncan of Cheyenne. Another posse, headed by Sheriff George Carroll of Bridgeport, was formed there and the men were trailed to the bank of the North Platte river.

Pursued Men in Trap.

The two posses approached the men from opposite directions, the Cheyenne party coming up on the south side of the river and the Bridgeport posse on the north.

Perceiving the trap, the two men plunged into the stream and swam to a wooded island in the center of the river, which is several hundred yards across at that point.

When the two posses arrived opposite the island, one on either side of the river, their quarry was safely hidden in the undergrowth of the island.

Deputy Sheriff Glenn E. Schultz then volunteered to swim to the island and drive the men from their covert. Stripping off all his clothing, and carrying only a six-shooter revolver which he was forced to carry in his teeth, he swam across the stream.

Battle Follows.

Reaching the bank of the island, he ran into the undergrowth and was lost to the sight of the two parties.

Almost immediately, however, the two men sought by the officers appeared in the open with the deputy some distance behind them.

Carrying Only a Six-Shooter.

Immediately the two posses opened fire on the men and the suspects returned the fire for several minutes until they perceived they were surrounded, when they threw up their hands in token of surrender.

They were then escorted to the bank of the stream by the deputy and returned to the city where they were lodged in the county jail to await hearing in connection with the charge of murder.

CRIPPLE RIDES TO DEATH

Harry A. Swart, Helpless for Nine Years in Chicago Institution, Sought Watery Grave.

Chicago.—Harry A. Swart, a cripple, rode to his death in a wheel chair. For nine years he had been paralyzed and an inmate of the Home for Incurables in Chicago. He complained bitterly of his fate.

When he was missed at the home, attendants began to search for him. He was traced nine blocks to Lake Michigan. A policeman had assisted him across a crowded street. Several pedestrians had helped him along.

BLACK CAT SAVES PASSENGER TRAIN

Engineer's Mascot Gives Warning of Washed-Out Trestle Just in Time.

Milwaukee, Wis.—Tobey, a Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railroad cat, black as jet, born in the roundhouse, was accustomed to noises of the machines running in and out. Tobey always managed to keep from under the wheels after he had lost his tail under a switch engine. On cold nights he could be found curled up in the cab of his master's "hog."

When the engineer started out he whistled. Tobey would make the cab in a jump and curl up at the engineer's feet and go to sleep.

When Tobey appeared for the run one evening recently he seemed to have a premonition of evil, for he showed reluctance to board the locomotive, but was finally persuaded.

About two in the morning Tobey sprang to his feet and began to dash madly about, clawing at the engineer's feet. Then a light flickered by that told of a high trestle a few miles beyond. The spring rains had made the track "spongy" and raised the stream beneath to a raging torrent.

The engineer knew the bridge had been condemned a few weeks before, so he closed the throttle and jammed on the air. The train came to a stop a few rods from where the headlight showed a chasm that had been spanned by a bridge a few hours before. There were several Pullmans in the train and all occupied.

SECRET RETREAT IS FOUND

Aged Woman Hides Fifteen Years in Top of Business Building in Columbus, O.

Columbus, O.—For 15 years an aged woman has made her home in a room on the top floor of a business building in Columbus, O., almost opposite the state capitol. The affairs of a city of a quarter of a million passed underneath her window. Twentieth century traffic hurried along the business street in Columbus, while behind the dirty window pane she lived after the manner of a hermit in a cave.

Her retreat was found when painters peered into the window. For days the room's inhabitant was watched for. Late one night she was seen to scurry up the steps. Police investigated and found an unkempt room, cobwebbed and filthy. In a corner was a pile of dirty rags, the aged woman's bed. She told officials she had lived in the room 15 years without paying rent. She left it, she said, before dawn and returned at midnight. No one ever saw her come or go, and her existence was suspected but not known.

She was turned over to the Associated Charities. This organization, however, is searching for her. Officials said she disappeared as mysteriously as she lived.

Lost $50 Bill Lined Mouse Nest in Piano

It was nothing new to a piano tuner sent to tune a piano in a home in Altoona, Pa., to discover a mouse's nest under the keyboard, but his curiosity was aroused when he saw the nest was lined with a certificate from Uncle Sam's treasury. He pulled it out and found a $50 bill which he gave to the woman of the house. Then she explained that last autumn her husband tucked the bill under the carpet for safe-keeping and when, several months later, they looked for it, the bill had disappeared. The mouse had utilized it.

No man fought the late Rev. J. C. A. Borland more bitterly than did Charles J. Bangert, Editor of THE PAMPHLET. What he writes in the September number, therefore, should be of special interests to supporters of both.

This article is no fulsome, gushing eulogy, as too many obituaries are. It is rather a fair, honest and straightforward estimate of a man's work by another who knew it well. Whether you agreed with the late Rev. Borland, or with Charlie Bangert, you should not miss the September PHAMPHLET.

Campbell and the Bergdolls

Maj. Bruce R. Campbell of the United States army told a house investigating committee that not a single penny of the $6,500 placed by him with a Wall street firm for stock market trading last year was received from the Bergdoll family. Flatly denying the charge by Mrs. Emma C. Bergdoll of Philddelphia that he had been paid $5,000 to aid in obtaining freedom for Grover Cleveland Bergdoll, her draft-dodging son, Major Campbell declared that the sum sent to the brokers was his own money, bidden by his wife at her home since the early days of the war.

The major asserted that a "frightful" injustice had been done him by the committee in permitting Mrs. Bergdoll and a representative of the brokers to testify when he was not present. At various times, Major Campbell declared, he and his wife had $17,000 on deposit.

As military counsel for the slacker, he never received a dollar, he declared. The only things they ever gave him, he said, were three little cambric handkerchiefs, bought at a soldiers' fair on the island, as trinkets for his babies.

DAINTY COMPANY DISHES.

A dish of baked bananas to serve with broiled steak is a most appetizing dish and is easily prepared thus: Remove the peeling from a half dozen large bananas, scrape to remove all the coarse threads and lay in a well-buttered glass baking dish. Grate the rind of an orange and one-half a lemon and add the juice of each with one-half cupful of sugar. Pour over the bananas, adding two tablespoonfuls of butter. Baste during the baking, about twenty minutes.

Pear Salad.—Take halves of peeled very ripe pears, or the canned variety may be used if drained. Sprinkle with a teaspoonful of lemon juice and fill the center with a ball of cream cheese. Place on lettuce leaves and cover with a dressing made with the pear juice, if canned fruit is used, or with a little pineapple juice, olive oil, catsup, lemon juice and paprika, with a dash of salt, and sugar if fresh fruit is used.

Peachering.—Rub a cupful of fresh ripe peeled peaches through a sieve, add a cupful or less depending upon the sweetness of the fruit and the taste of the family. Beat the whites of three eggs until stiff, then fold in the peaches and cream. Pour into a well-buttered baking dish and bake in water until firm. Serve with whipped cream.

Vegetable Dish.—This is the season to cook young onions, carrots and peas together, adding a bit of browned salt pork cut in bits, a cupful of milk and seasonings, just as it is ready to serve. Cut the carrots and onions in thin slices.

Potato Souffle.—Boil and mash ten potatoes, press through a sieve, add two onions chopped fine, three slices of bacon, chopped, the yolks of four eggs well beaten; two tablespoonfuls of chopped parsley. Add a cupful of milk, mix and fold in the stiffly beaten whites. Bake in a buttered dish until puffed and brown. Serve at once.

THE COMMONEST MISTAKES

Judge McCormick of San Francisco says these are the 13 commonest mistakes in life:

To attempt to set up your own standards of right and wrong.

To try to measure the enjoyment of others by your own.

To expect uniformity of opinion in this world.

To fail to make allowances for inexperience.

To endeavor to mold all dispositions alike.

Not to yield to unimportant trifles.

To look for perfection in our own actions.

To worry ourselves and others about what cannot be remedied.

To consider a thing impossible that we cannot ourselves perform.

Failing to help everybody wherever, however we can.

To believe only what our minds can grasp.

Not to make allowances for the weakness of others.

To estimate by some outside quality when it is that within which makes the man.—From the Oklahoman.

Bee's Keen Eye for Landmarks.

How is it that a bee can fly all over a town, and yet invariably come home to the hive in the shortest? There can be little doubt that no intelligent insect as this has a memory and a keen eye for landmarks, this is testified to by the fact that almost all bees fly by day, whereas such creatures as moths, of no fixed home or occupation, fly in the darkness. A bee would be lost at midnight because it could not recognize its surroundings.

Not Negro Songs.

Most people fancy in a vague way that Stephen Foster's songs are negroid or were inspired by negro music. But "Old Folks at Home" and the other Foster melodies are as unlike negro music as anything possibly be. That their words often in negro dialect and express negro sentiments is simply a historic accident due to the fact that in Foster's day the negro minstrels, real or "corked," were the only means of bringing music before the public.

Vincent Astor Enjoys a Smoke

The first picture in many months of Vincent Astor, New York millionaire, snapped while enjoying a cigaret at the Forest Hills, L. I., tennis matches.

Among Demi-Season Wraps

THE between-seasons' wrap, like the between-seasons' hat, is an acquisition to the wardrobe that proves to be a very accommodating thing. It makes its appearance at any time of the year in weather that demands it, and passes under the scrutiny of the critical quite sure of their approval. It is made to suit weather conditions rather than seasons.

Mid-summer brought in and late summer is approving some very handsome knitted garments, capes and coats, along with tuxedos and sweater-coats, that have a promising future. They are made in many colors and color combinations, and varied as knitted garments can be, by the use of different kinds of stitches in the process of making them. Many of the capes are accordion pleated and many both striped and plaited. For making collars, cuffs, borders and all trimmings angora cloth is used and the combination of the two fabrics is wonderfully effective.

The cape pictured is a handsome wrap for present wear and for fall. It is shown in plain colors and in stripes in a considerable variety of colors. In white with a stripe of orange and trimming of light gray angora it is a beautiful wrap but not without rivals, in vivid green with white or gray angora, in blue and white stripes, in tan and brown and all the "sweater tones."

Duvetyn will assume the responsibility of providing many wraps for autumn. It is made in all colors and its texture softens and enriches even the most vivid of them. Among the smartest of the materials for fall and winter appears the reliable and time-honored cheviot, showing vagaries in its weave as well as plain patterns.

Attractive Nursery.

If in a child's room there is not nursery wallpaper and pictures, one can make an attractive room by pinning pictures of children and animals on the walls. The young child learning to talk will find much pleasure in naming the objects in the pictures.

Peanut Known as Goober Pea.

The territory of tidewater Virginia grows more peanuts than any other part of the United States. To that territory may be added parts of the Carolinas, also great peanut-growing states. Some places in the Carolinas the peanut is referred to as "the goober pea."

GIVE GUINEA CHICKS WELL-BALANCED FEED

Nothing Is Required for First Thirty-Six Hours.

Fowls Are Natural Rangers and Will Pick Up Seeds, Grasses, Insects and Green Vegetation to Supply Much of Living.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Guineas are fed in much the same way as chickens, but they require less feed, as they are natural rangers and can be trusted to find enough seeds of weeds and grasses, buds, insects and green vegetation in the fields to supply much of their living. For the first 36 hours after hatching no feed is required, as the sustenance from the egg is sufficient to nourish them for this period. The first meal may consist of a little hard-boiled egg mixed with bread crumbs, or bread may be soaked in milk, squeezed partly dry, and fed in small bits. Clabbered milk also is very good, poultry specialists in the United States Department of Agriculture say.

Three times a day is as often as they need to be fed, one feed consisting of clabbered milk or the bread and egg or bread and milk mixture, and the other two of chick feed. If the coop is placed in a field or pasture where green feed is available, the guinea chicks can secure this for themselves; otherwise, sprouted oats, dandelion leaves, lettuce, or onion tops cut fine should be furnished. Water, grit, and fine oyster shell should be before them always.

Brood of Guinea Chicks.

By the end of the first week the young guineas will be finding enough worms and insects to take the place of the egg or milk feed, so this may be eliminated and chick feed given morning and night. If clabbered milk is available, however, it can be continued with excellent success, since guineas are very fond of variety in their ration and it is conducive to quick growth. As the birds grow older whole wheat, oats, and cracked corn can be substituted gradually for the chick feed.

WAY TO PREVENT MILDEWING

Keep Leather in Well-Ventilated, Dry, Well-Lighted Place, Exposed to Sunlight.

Any leather article is almost certain to mildew if kept in a warm, damp, and dark place, such as a closet, cellar, or stable. This mildewing probably will not reduce seriously the serviceability of the article, unless it is allowed to remain on the leather too long. It may, however, change the color appreciably, thus injuring the appearance. The simplest way to prevent mildewing, say specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture, is to keep the leather in a well-ventilated, dry, well-lighted place, preferably one exposed to the sunlight. Mildew can not make much headway in the sunshine. When mildew develops, it should be washed off with soap and warm water, or simply wiped off with a moist cloth, drying the leather well afterwards. These simple measures are preferable to the application in the home of preparations designed to prevent the growth of mildew.

POISON BAIT FOR CUTWORMS

White Arsenic, Arsenate of Lead or Paris Green, Mixed With Bran Is Effective.

Cutworms appear in early spring and cut off the stems of young plants at the surface of the ground. They are quickly destructive. The best remedy is poisoned bait. For a small garden mix two level tablespoons of white arsenic, arsenate of lead, or Paris green into five pounds of dry bran. Add from four to six quarts of water, in which half a pint of sorghum or cheap molasses has been mixed. After the mash has stood several hours scatter it thinly over the garden or a small quantity at the base of the plants. Put the poison on late in the day, so it will be moist during the night when the cutworms feed.

VALUE OF SILAGE

One ton of silage is equal to about 226 pounds of corn and 613 pounds of clover hay for dairy cows.

One ton of silage is equal to 144 pounds of corn and 930 pounds of clover hay for fattening lambs.

These figures are calculated from Wisconsin experiments.

One thing we do NOT do

"Ah 'clares to goodness, Ah just rubs de daylights out ob dem things, an' still de're not clean," cries the old colored laundress.

And literally she does rub the daylights out of things.

That is one thing we do not do—we've discovered a better way of cleansing—a gentle, certain way that produces aseptic cleanness without wearing or weakening the fabric.

Drop in some day and watch our modern washing machines at work—see how oceans of pure, soft water and suds of mild, white soap surge through and through the fabrics, washing every trace of soil away.

Then you'll readily understand why no rubbing is necessary—why your dainty things, sent to us, last so much longer.

Let our representative call for your family bundle this week—a phone call will bring him, promptly.

50,000 Miles in a Yacht

Albert Y. Gowen, millionaire yachtsman of Cleveland, is shown here with his wife as they left New York for a 50,000-mile trip around the world in Speejacks, a yacht built especially for the trip. The yacht, 98 feet long, has a heating plant for cold climates and a ventilating system for the tropics. The vessel draws only six feet and Gowen expects to go far inland on rivers.

Cost to America of 1920 Crime Wave Is One Hundred Million Dollars

By W. B. JOYCE, President National Surety Co.

An item of $100,000,000, hitherto not taken into calculation, must be added to what the war cost America. This huge sum is the estimated cost of the 1920 crime wave, which is traceable to the effect of the war on humanity. If the present ratio is maintained, crime losses for 1921 will be equally as large. More serious than money is the unprecedented addition to the ranks of America's criminals.

The $100,000,000 estimate is based upon the embezzlement and burglary claims paid for 1920 by 30 of the country's leading safety and burglary insurance companies. These companies paid claims aggregating $15,813,672, while in 1913, before the outbreak of the war, claims for only $3,328,789 were paid. But approximately 90 per cent of burglary and embezzlement losses are not insured, and in many instances where full claims were paid, the insurance was far too small to cover the actual loss.

Every war is followed by widespread disrespect of law. Cynical thoughts of the cheapness of human life, indifference to human suffering and disregard of others' rights are aftermaths of armed conflict.

Agitators find a more ready field for the spread of their doctrines. The spread of discontent was greatly augmented by the oft-repeated reports of enormous profits piled up during the war. Two other factors are the belief in the unequal distribution of wealth and the vulgar display of valuables in public places.

Nickel is regarded as one of the most useful metals, though it lacks the prestige of silver and gold. It is bright and hard and non-corrosive, and in combination with iron it has been in great demand for war equipment and for bridges and other structural work.

The smallest screws in the world, used by watchmakers, are so tiny that they look like dust. An ordinary thimble could hold about 100,000 of them. Some of the smallest of them are only 1-1,000 of an inch across and can hardly be seen with the naked eye.

The investigating scientist, in explaining how it is that diamonds have a temperature different from spurious gems made of glass, says the difference in temperature is due to the relative molecular compactum of the gem and the glass, the harder the stone the less susceptible to heat.

"I've seen them look at me from the school room late in June, just before school was out for the summer holidays. And I've seen how they envied me, with no lessons to learn and no studying to do.

"But I've not felt very sorry for them, because I've known that soon they will be out for their vacations.

"We belong to the milkweed family of butterflies, because we feed upon milkweed leaves.

"We are very fond of beauty, and even when we are in the chrysalis state we live in lovely little green homes with gold decorations.

"When the autumn comes we go away to the south just as the birds do.

"Perhaps, though, before I go further, I should tell you what I look like.

"I'm sure when I do you will be able to recognize me, for I am seen about a great deal.

"I am of reddish brown in color, with black legs and black head, and a collar with white spots.

"I wear black edges to my wings, which are also handsomely marked with red spots.

"I'm a big fellow, and you see me about a great deal. But I was going to tell you about a monarch and a ruler. They named my family the Monarch Butterfly because we were so big and beautiful and wore such handsome costumes.

"I Am a Pet."

"We take our time about doing things, too, which shows that we are rather superior and don't have to scurry for everything we want.

"They saw us flying over the fields and about the countryside and they said:

"'You really are monarchs of all butterflies, for you're so big and beautiful. And you should have some particularly fine name given to you so that people can call you something worthy of your stateliness and your beauty and your style.

"'You should have some special name!'

"So they decided that the name of Monarch would do beautifully for us as a special name.

"Just as Milkweed butterflies does all right as a general family name.

"But I have something more still to tell. And that is, that I am a pet butterfly.

"Yes, I am fed sweetened water which is like honey from flowers, and I perch on a little girl's finger and she gives me this drink.

"She has made me so happy and so tame. And she has never frightened me, and she has been patient to teach me to sip the water as I sit upon her finger.

"If she had caught me only to add me to a collection I would have been very sad, for then I would have wished I hadn't been sweet and pleasant.

"But she didn't do anything like that. And so I have something quite unusual and interesting to tell about my life.

"That surely is an interesting fact. I live in her garden and I not only make friends with the flowers, but I make friends with the little girl.

"I'd like to sing a song about her in my butterfly fashion.

So he sang:

"She is very graceful, she is very fair;
She has lovely blue eyes and golden hair.
Everyone loves her and cares for her so,
She's a general favorite where'er she may go.
And among her admirers I count myself one,
So I wing her this verse as I sit in the sun."

And the Monarch butterfly danced a dance of joy with his beautiful wings.

Saluting the Flag.

In some of the schools since our entry into the war, saluting the flag has become part of the school exercises. And it is important that this should not be allowed to lapse into a meaningless formality. Saluting the flag will not help to inspire patriotism if it is a perfunctory form. Put your heart into it, whatever the attitude of your schoolmates. As far as you are concerned, make each occasion a fresh consecration of yourself to the service of your country.

But One Way.

There is but one way to heaven for the learned and the unlearned.—Jeremy Taylor.

BOY SCOUTS

(Conducted by National Council of the Boy Scouts of America.)

CO-OPERATE WITH SCOUTS

In connection with the boy scout co-operation in the national observance of Forest Protection week last May, the state forester of Minnesota wrote as follows to the national council:

"I have always been very much interested in the work of the boy scouts and will gladly avail myself of any opportunity to co-operate with this organization. While in the past there has been a certain amount of co-operation between the scouts and the forest service, I think it is possible to greatly increase this. In my opinion, this is one of the best means of educating the public in regard to the conservation of our natural resources. The boy scout of today is the voter and business man of tomorrow, and his actions in the future will be determined largely by the training and education he receives now.

"The forest officers in the state service are all very much interested in boy scouts. In fact, some of our men are scoutmasters and others act in an advisory capacity on matters pertaining to woodscraft and foresgry. We frequently give talks to scout troops and meetings of scoutmasters. At our recent rangers' meeting we asked some of the scoutmasters to take an active part in the discussion. This they did, and some very valuable ideas were worked out.

"We are furnishing some 1,500 small trees which are to be planted and taken care of by the boys at their summer camps. These plantations will be in the nature of boy scouts forests."

SCOUTS THERE WITH FIRST AID.

When One of Their Troop Meets With an Accident, the Others Know What to Do.

SCOUT PREPAREDNESS.

It certainly pays to be prepared. A scout may work his fingers nearly off on first aid practice and never have a chance to put his skill to real, sure-enough rescue work, but then again—when he least expects it the opportunity may be his to do a real job of life saving. Here is a case in point. A boy and his little sister were alone in a house. The little girl, running across the room, slipped and falling forward ran her arm through the window pane, severing an artery. What would the average boy do? Run for help? Telephone for the doctor? Well and good. But, in the meantime, a severed artery means terrific loss of blood, and even death unless it is checked instantly. There isn't time for ordinary precautions. It is a case of instant action. Luckily in the instance here cited, the boy was a boy plus, that is, a boy scout and he took charge of the situation himself, improvised a tourniquet to stop the flow of blood and then sent for the doctor. When the latter arrived he declared that the boy's prompt action undoubtedly saved the child's life.

SCOUT TRAINING SAVES LIFE.

Little Mildred Cannon, a five-year-old youngster, started a little campfire of her own in her back yard. Her clothing caught fire and the child ran screaming toward the house. Her brother Eugene, a fourteen-year-old scout, heard the little one's outcry and rushing to the rescue rolled her in the sand, extinguishing the flames, undoubtedly saving the child from being burned to death. Another incident which goes to prove that a scout really is prepared and doesn't lose his head in time of emergency.

ASK THE SCOUTS.

Two hundred Brooklyn scouts are acting as volunteer police in Prospect park, aiding in the park department's "Save the Parks" drive.

Every year our forests are illegally robbed to obtain Christmas trees, half of which are never sold or used. Deputy Forest Supervisor Kirby of Arizona enlisted a scout troop's services last winter in preventing the unlawful and vandalistic cutting of trees in the Crook National forest.

ACCUSE FATHER OF 4 MURDERS

Connecticut Man Is Charged With Atrocious Crimes by Two of His Sons.

PASSION FOR MONEY

One Son Says Father Fired Building in Which Three Persons Were Sleeping and Shot Them Down as They Fled.

Middletown, Conn.—Lodged in jail in Middlesex county, Conn., is a short, stolid German, who, if all that is said about him is true, or even half of it, is likely never again to regain his freedom, if he is not condemned to death.

Emil Schutte was the former ruler of Shailerville, a little settlement of 200 souls. He conducted the general store. He was former constable in the settlement. He was and is domineering in manner and was a stern character, of whom the people stood in awe. For years he was regarded the terror of the community and lorded it over others with proud disdain. Things had prospered with him and with a good business and a comfortable sum laid away in the bank, he took on great importance in his own opinion and for that matter in the eyes of the people.

Idol Has Fallen.

But the idol has fallen from its pedestal. Schutte lies in jail on the charge of assault with intent to kill, committed against his wife, and as the result of investigations now being conducted by authorities he may have also to answer within very few days for a series of atrocious murders.

One of Schutte's weaknesses was an inordinate passion for money. Because she would not deed over to him certain property she possessed, the wife was driven from her home by the enraged and avaricious husband, who chased her into the woods, firing revolver bullets at her as she fled. Mrs. Schutte was compelled to swear out a warrant for his arrest. The moment the old man was in jail, people began to talk and the authorities to act upon their intimations and suggestions.

The result is that Schutte is accused by his twelve-year-old son, Augustine, with the murder of a farmhand, killed, it is believed, for his money, and is charged by another son, Julius, with having shot to death three members of one family and

Life in Balance for Several Days; He Leaves Hospital Two Weeks Later.

SHOT WHILE AT PLAY

Doctors Say It Is the Most Remarkable Case in History of Hospital—Seven Buckshot Pellets Lodged in Heart Muscles.

Paterson, N. J.—Alive with seven pellets of buckshot in the muscles of his heart, and apparently suffering slight, if any, ill effects, is the remarkable case of twelve-year-old Lawrence Setterfield, of Bloomingdale, N. J., according to doctors of the Paterson General hospital.

The boy was accidentally shot on May 1. He left the hospital two weeks later, having prevailed on his parents and the staff doctors to let him do so, declaring he was all right, and did not want to stay indoors any longer. His pleading won the consent of the attending surgeons, but not before a further X-ray examination was made.

The result showed the pellets all remaining in the muscles of the heart. They could be seen moving around when the boy was taking long breaths, according to the statement made by Dr. Samuel Thompson, of the hospital staff.

Remarkable Case.

"When this little fellow was first brought in," Dr. Thompson said, "he hovered between life and death for several days. When he left here he was apparently none the worse for his accident. I find his case one of the most remarkable ever entered in this hospital, or that has occurred in Passaic county during my memory. It is almost beyond belief."

On Sunday, May 1, the boy, with his two cousins, Thompson Yatman, six years old, and William Yaturn, fourteen years old, were playing around the grounds of the Yatman home in Bloomingdale. Thompson went into the Yatman barn and brought out an old shotgun belonging to his father. "It was the old story, "we did not know it was loaded."

The children began the usual boyish game of "bandits." The old shotgun in the hands of Thompson, youngest of the three, was discharged. Part of the load of shot struck William Yatman in the left leg and a scattering of the shot penetrated Lawrence Setterfield's left side, lodging in the heart muscle.

Life Hung in Balance.

Hearing the report, the father of Thompson and William ran out of his house and found his eldest son and his nephew lying on the ground partly

Nuts in Immense Quantities.

On the north coast of Guatemala 60,000 tons of cohune nuts are said to be available for exportation annually, and with an expenditure of $10,000 for highway improvement this quantity could probably be increased to 100,000 tons per annum. On the Pacific or south coast the yield of corozo nuts, it is estimated, could easily be increased to 300,000 tons per annum. There is a supply of cheap labor in this southern region.

First Papermaker.

The original papermaker is the paper spider, in the dense woods in the interior of Africa, that large spider building its home from fine paper of its own making, when it selects a smooth surface about two inches square, covering it with fine threads that are papery, placing its 50 eggs beneath, then spinning a thin border that pastes it down tight until the eggs hatch in three weeks.—Indianapolis News.

It Is Impossible for Modern Society to Part Company With Its Past

By CALVIN COOLIDGE, Vice President

The most pressing requirement of the present hour is not how we are to solve our economic problems, but: Where are we to find the sustaining influences for the realities of life? How are we to justify the existing form of government in our republic? On what can we rely for a continuation of that service of sacrifice which has made modern civilization possible?

It is impossible for society to break off with its past. It is the product of all which has gone before. We could not cut ourselves off from all influences which existed prior to the Declaration of Independence and expect any success by undertaking to ignore all that happened before that date.

The principles and ideals on which we must depend not only for a continuance of modern culture, but, I believe, for a continuance of the development of science itself, come to us from the classics. All this is the reason that the sciences and the professions reach their highest development as the supplement of a classical education.

There has been a theory that all learning ought to be at once translated into scientific and commercial activities. Advancement, however, can not be insured without a culture.

Unless Americans shall continue to live by something more than the present, to be moved by something more than material gains, they will go down as other peoples have gone down before some nation possessed of a greater moral force. The will to endure is not the creation of a moment; it is the result of long training.

What's the Senate Quorum?

Senator Walsh of Montana (portrait herewith) raised the question the other day in the senate; what constitutes a quorum of the senate. The occasion was this: Senator Wolcott of Delaware had resigned, his successor had not been appointed, and the president of the senate had ruled that as the senate consisted of but 85 members, 43 constituted a majority (quorum). Senator Walsh argued that the decision was in violation of the Constitution, which provided that a majority was more than half of a senate of full strength. Senator Lodge of Massachusetts, after considerable debating, produced the action of the senate on October 11, 1893:

"Mr. Wolcott raised a question of order, viz, that under the fifth section of Article 1 of the Constitution, it required a majority of all the senators to which the several states are entitled to constitute a quorum, and therefore the number present should be 45. The vice president (Mr. Stevenson) overruled the question of order, stating that in his decision he would be governed by the rule, viz, Rule III, clause 2, which provides that "a quorum shall consist of a majority of the senators duly chosen and sworn." An appeal from this decision was laid on the table—yeas 38, nays 5."

Senator Walsh still held that the rule was a violation of the Constitution, and that the rule should be changed.

The Treasurer-"Devil"

By REV. H. OSTROM, D. D.
Extension Department, Moody Bible Institute, Chicago.

TEXT.—Judas also knew the place.—John 18:2.

Keeping good company is well, but it cannot guarantee that one is good. Judas is with the other eleven apostles, and with Jesus too. He knows the Garden of Gethsemane as a place where Jesus often visits. He has been there with him, nevertheless he is a betrayer. Like the foolish virgins in the parable, he has had enough of the oil of the Holy Spirit's influence on his soul to make him accept our Lord's company in such a place, but he will not accept of eternal life as a gift. Outwardly he has joined the Apostles' Band, but, inwardly he is a thief. Good company, but a thief's heart!

His choosing to "join" before he had "received" may have cost him his soul. If he had humbly insisted upon not joining until he had accepted our Lord Jesus Christ as the one who would fulfill all sacrificial types for sinners, then he might have ranked with John or Paul.

He knew the place. Those trees could talk to him. He could gather messages from the footprints and paths there. The very air was eloquent, to him. Oh, there are records which do not fit into music boxes or conform to machinery. They are heard at most unexpected times. As if started by unseen hands, in the dark of the night, they compel us to listen. Just as some who read this can hardly help thinking of the path up to the old schoolhouse, where, in the winter revival, they sang, "Come ye sinners poor and needy," or of the old kitchen in the old farmhouse where family prayers were conducted once a day. How often the Spirit of God whispers, "Forget not all his benefits." But Judas had a sinful heart and would not yield that to Jesus the sin-bearer. The place was outside the man, the heart of sin was close within. Croon over the place, he might, but like a soldier on guard, he would fight Jesus away from that citadel of the heart.

And why should Judas be one of the twelve? To be sure, he is later substituted by Matthias, but why was he ever admitted? "I have chosen you twelve and one of you is a devil," are the words so startling. And that one the treasurer! Yes, for when God is manifested fighting sin, he asks for no favors or quarter. He fights it on its own ground and out in the open. The apostles are in the thick of the centuries-old conflict with human sin. So far as the record states there could not have been much money for Judas to handle anyway. But he can be allowed to add and subtract and have first-hand information, where, if there had been any trickery advised, he would have known about it.

Now this is the man who sells Jesus for a few cents more than five dollars. Yes, but this is the man who throughout the whole known record never states that he finds any trace of deception or trickery on Jesus' part. This "son of perdition" on the inside, with first-hand information, this "devil" cannot find a flaw or a fleck in all the structure of Jesus' conduct. He objects to Mary anointing him, but remember, he nowhere calls him "Lord."

"Do we not see that today men and women, wayward and guilty, will say that they do not criticize Jesus? His enemies admit, by the ten thousand, that they "find no fault in him." Yet they refuse him their hearts. How could Jesus Christ be such a true teacher, leader of men and example if his repeated declaration of his Savior-ship were false? How can a man properly appreciate his teaching and his wonder works and at the same moment reject his shed blood? You admire him, but you do not receive him; beware lest, for a price, you sell him.

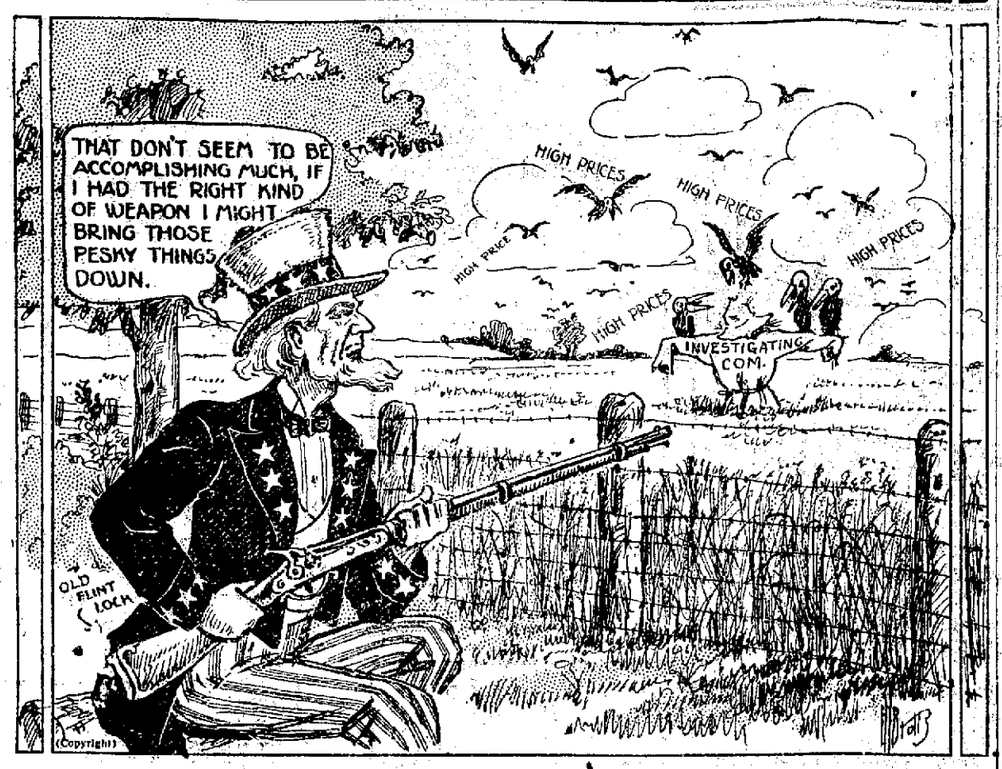

There is another "place" mentioned in the account. Judas went to "his own place." He had heard of that place from Jesus himself. "To be cast into hell" had doubtless rung in his ears more than once. No garden with olive trees there. No Jesus to teach one there. The sale Judas made and that place are closely associated. If he will hear him teach and even endorse his greatness, but yet have the heart to sell him, that one place is his destiny. Soul, do not reject the Lord Jesus as Saviour today, lest, tomorrow the heart that so rejects proves to be the heart that sells, and you enter that—"place." Like a garden whose trees and flowers all speak of blessing, so is his grace today, but, if you reject that, I would that you might realize that you turn toward Judas' place. Judas had, as it were, a deed in hand to that place when he was right in the company of Jesus. He had fully realized it, doubtless; the very possession of it would have been to him like fire.

Sour Milk.

Among the many uses for sour milk is that of silver polish. Put the silverware in the liquid and let it remain for 20 to 30 minutes. Then wash as usual. It will look as if it had been polished.

Mica an Excellent Insulator.

Mica does not burn or melt, except at a very high temperature, and therefore it is an excellent electric insulator. It is non-hygroscopic and offers more resistance to high voltage electricity than any insulating material known.

Used to the Armless.

An English machine for the use of armless men consists of a table under which are pegs worked by the toes. The pegs are connected with artificial "arms" above the table, which do almost everything that can be done by human arms. Thus the patient can use a spoon, knife and fork, drink from a cup, pick a cigarette and place it in his mouth, open a box of matches, strike a match and light the cigarette, typewrite, turn the leaves of a book, play checkers, wash and dry his face and neck, etc.

Sundial Really of Little Use.

The sundial is nothing like so efficient as a watch. It never was very much of an aid to man as a time indicator. It never professed to do more than tell the time of day, because it could not tell the time of night, and on old sundials, as well as on many new ones, is this sentence, often in Latin: "I mark none but sunny hours." So that on foggy days, or on days of gloom and cloudy skies, the "gnomon," which is that triangular piece whose shadow points out the time on the dial, casts no shadow.

SPECIALISTS GIVE DIRECTIONS FOR PUTTING DOWN EGG SUPPLY

What Is Needed in Preserving Eggs for Winter Supply.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

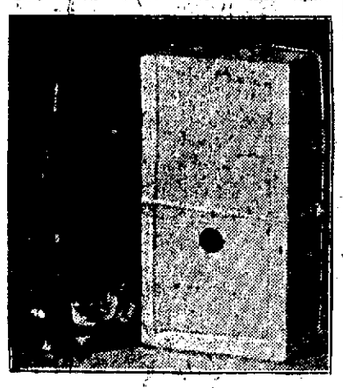

Boys and girls who are members of poultry clubs, or those who are interested in any way in chickens, should learn how to candle and preserve eggs. Candling means the sorting out of bad eggs before a strong light in such a manner that the rays of light come to the eye through the egg so that the contents can be seen and the condition noted.

The shell of a newly laid egg has a soft "glow" or "bloom" which is a sign of perfect freshness. This glow or bloom is destroyed by handling, and in any case disappears after the egg has been exposed to the air for a short time. After that it is difficult to distinguish a fresh egg from an old one by the appearance of the shell, so candling becomes necessary if you would be sure that the egg is good.

Candle Eggs in a Dark Room.

Eggs can be candled best in a dark room, by the use of a bright light inclosed in a box or case having a hole a trifle smaller than an egg directly opposite the light. The egg is held at this hole for examination. An ordinary hand lamp, a lantern, an incandescent bulb, or a flashlight can be used. If you are using a box and a hand lamp the box should have a hole at the top, otherwise the heat from the top of the chimney would set the box on fire. A tester chimney made of tin, such as is used on a lamp for testing eggs in incubators, may be used for candling, in which case you would not need the box, as the eggs are tested by means of a hole in the side of the tin.

A perfectly good, fresh egg shows "full" and "clear" before the light.

A Shoebox and a Lamp Will Do for Candling Eggs.

There is almost no air cell at the large end and the yolk outline is only faintly visible. A fixed air cell of one-eighth to three-sixteenths of an inch in depth indicates a fresh egg, as eggs run generally. A larger air cell with a movable lower line indicates—according to sizes and fluctuations—a stale egg or one becoming weak and watery. Very small dark spots sometimes seen usually are blood clots. Large dark spots, blood rings, and shadows are due to heat and germination, and indicate first stages of decay. An egg that appears very dark or black, except for a large fixed air cell, contains a chick at an advanced stage of incubation.

Fresh eggs, properly preserved, may be kept from six to ten months and be almost as good for household purposes as fresh eggs. Another reason for preserving eggs in water glass, for instance, is the fact that they do not acquire the objectionable "cold-storage taste."

Allow Three Dozen to Gallon.

To preserve 15 dozen eggs in water glass these directions are given by the specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture:

Select a five-gallon earthen crock, clean it thoroughly, scald, and allow it to dry. Heat ten to twelve quarts of water to the boiling point, and allow it to cool. When the water is cool, measure out nine quarts, put into the crock, and add one quart of sodium silicate, commonly called water glass, which can be bought at any drug store. Stir well, so that the solution becomes thoroughly mixed.

The solution thus prepared is ready for the eggs, which may be put in all at once, or from time to time as they are obtainable. Care should be taken in putting them into the jar not to crack or break the shells; also be sure the solution covers the eggs at all times. Put the crock containing the preserved eggs in a cool, dry place, and cover with a tight lid or waxed paper to prevent evaporation.

To preserve a smaller or larger number of eggs, the solution should be mixed and prepared in the same proportions.

Use Only Clean Fresh Eggs.

If best results are to be obtained, the eggs should be clean and fresh, and preferably infertile. For this reason it is always best when possible to candle the eggs carefully before preserving them unless they are known to be strictly fresh. If an egg is only slightly soiled a cloth dampened with vinegar may be used to remove stains, but eggs should never be washed with water or soap and water, as water removes the protective coating on the shell and may tend to cause the contents to spoil. Never use badly-soiled or cracked eggs. They may spoil all the others.

Fresh eggs preserved according to these directions usually will keep for from six to ten months, and can be used satisfactorily for cooking and for the table. If, however, preserved eggs are to be boiled, a small hole should be made with a pin in the larger end of the shell before placing them in the water, to allow the air in the egg to escape when heated, and thus prevent cracking.

POOLING FEATURE IS MOST FEASIBLE IDEA

Each Grower Receives Same Price for His Products.

Individual Members Amply Protected From Loss Because of Unfavorable Market Conditions of a Temporary Nature.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The pooling of products sold through co-operative organizations is an important feature of co-operative marketing, specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture have found. By pooling is meant averaging the returns received for products sold during a certain period, or for certain shipments, so that each grower having products of the same grade receives the same price. The success of a pooling system depends upon the observance of uniform grading and packing of the products.

This method of operation, it is said, protects the individual member from loss because of unfavorable market conditions of a temporary nature. Some farmers' marketing organizations, especially grain-elevator companies, purchase the members' products outright. Conditions and practices in grain marketing make such a plan feasible, but organizations handling other products usually find it to their advantage to pool shipments and await returns before making payments to the growers.

In this way the association is relieved of speculative risks, the avoidance of which is highly desirable. Co-operative creameries, which prorate to the members monthly, in accordance with the amount of butter fat each has delivered the preceding month, the returns received for products sold less operating expenses, are good examples of pooling.

The length of the pooling period varies with the products handled and the local conditions. Thus there are car lot, daily, weekly, semimonthly, monthly, and seasonal pools.

MATERIAL FOUND IN WHEAT

Specialists Define Terms Used in Federal Standards—Dockage Is Easily Removed.

There are two terms in the federal wheat standards which apply to foreign material, explain specialists of the bureau of markets, United States Department of Agriculture—"dockage" and "foreign material other than dockage." The term dockage is applied to the foreign material which can be removed readily from the wheat by the use of appropriate sieves, cleaning devices, or other practical means suited to separate the foreign material present. Foreign material other than dockage is the foreign material that is not separated in the screening and remains in the dockage-free sample and is a factor in the grading, definite percentages being permitted within each numerical grade. Dockage does not affect the grade.

Two Charming New Over-Blouses

THOSE new blouses that dispose of the waistline by dispensing with a belt and covering it themselves, are having an immense success. There is no longer any danger of skirt and blouse parting company under a separate belt, and going their separate ways. This in itself is enough to insure the triumph of these new over-blouses, but it is furthered also by their gracefulness. A vague waistline like an uneven hemline is more pleasing to the eye than a straight line.

In these new over-blouses are all sorts of materials for all kinds of service beginning with wash silks; pongee and cotton, for utility wear, and ending with georgette, net and laces for dress. All the usual materials are used in them, but they are prettiest in the very soft, sheer fabrics, as fine voile and georgette. A model made of georgette in two colors is shown at the left of the two pictured here, and is one of the most graceful and beautiful that the designers have accomplished in this much admired material. It is one of many slip-on blouses that fasten on the shoulder, and has its collar, cuffs and border for the arm's-eye of georgette in a contrasting color. A very simple pattern in beading finishes a design that has few rivals in beauty of line, color and becomingness.

A semi-dress blouse of taffeta silk is shown at the right. The taffeta is tucked in cross-box pattern to form the lower part of the blouse, at the front and the odd embellishment of the three-quarter length sleeves. A short sash of taffeta extends from each side and ties in a small bow at the back. Each square, formed by the crossing tucks, is centered with a long bead, and this model is very pretty in dark colors with black beads. The plain square neck invites a collar of lace or organdy.

For Milady's Shoes.

The undressing of the foot continues. Now women are wearing toe-caps and heel-caps. Cross straps run up from the toes to the ankle to meet the heel strap which fastens around the ankle. The best to be said for such shoes is that they use up little leather; but that does not make them cheap. The long, pointed shoes have a certain popularity, but most women still prefer the short-vamped shoe. It is now generally accepted that the leg should be clothed in a light or transparent stocking, and the shoe must be either black or in the same shade. Gray stockings with shoes in suede to match are greatly liked; mahogany stockings with kid shoes to match are newer.—London Times.

New Features in Fall Styles

IF IT WERE not that apparel is always interesting and that there is so much diversity in the interpretation of the styles, the discussion of fall suits in August would be premature. But suits are the main stay in the wardrobe of most women and, therefore, they like to give them considerable thought, before making a choice.

For several years tyle tendencies have turned away from severely plain suits to go in the direction of elaboration in trimmings. So far no reaction has started: the new suits are nearly all embellished with some sort of trimming. There is nothing startlingly new in their lines which are almost straight or follow vaguely those of the natural figure. The main points of difference between them and the suits of last season lies in the length of coats and skirts and in the shape of sleeves and collars. As a rule, skirts are longer and coats vary from finger tip to knee length, although there are some that are shorter. Skirts continue plain and straight, but are wide enough for freedom in walking.

Of these two suits the one at the left may be regarded as typical of fall styles. It is made of one of those suitings with a suede-like finish, and the model pictured is in a warm brown color. The coat is uneven in length and decorated with silk embroidery in self color. Its collar and tuxedo lapels are made of taupe-colored nutria fur, and there are cuffs of the same fur.

In the suit at the right the designer has experimented with a wider skirt, having a flare toward the bottom and decorative panels of embroidery. These panels on suits and one-piece dresses are often in more than one color. The coat is shorter and ornamented with an embroidered panel at each side like those on the skirt. Moleskin fur makes the pockets, collar and band of fur on this coat.

BEAUTIFUL TYPE OF FARM HOME

Nine-Room House Supplies Accommodations for Large Family.

DRUDGERY DONE AWAY WITH

Unusually Well Designed and Substantially Built—Has Screened-in Sun Porch and Sleeping Porch—Rooms Are Airy.

By WILLIAM A. RADFORD.

Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give advice FREE OF COST on all subjects pertaining to the subject of building, for the readers of this paper. On account of his wide experience as Editor, Author and Manufacturer, he is, without doubt, the highest authority on all these subjects. Address all inquiries to William A. Radford, No. 1827 Prairie avenue, Chicago, Ill., and only enclose two-cent stamp for reply.

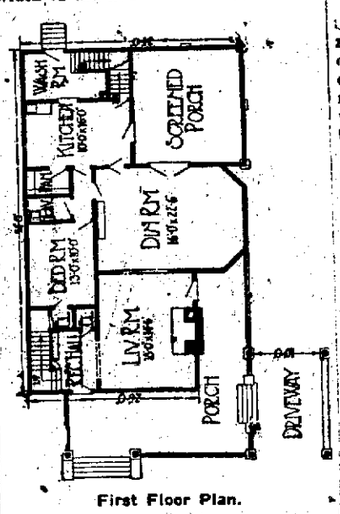

Building ideas have changed a whole lot in the space of less than ten years. Many old features which were considered absolutely necessary to the comfort of a home have been eliminated entirely and many new ideas which were frowned upon as freaks when first suggested are now the regular thing. We have in mind the sun parlor or porch and sleeping porch, now one of the most popular features in city home, apartment or farm home. People have become educated to the appreciation of good fresh air when sleeping. Our grandfathers regarded open windows in the sleeping rooms with a feeling akin to horror. Everything was shut down tight and it seemed to be the notion to prevent as little fresh air as possible from getting into the bedrooms.

But times have changed radically. Today fresh air is recognized as one of the greatest aids to health, and homes are being erected along lines that will provide a maximum of fresh air, of course without discomfort. The number of windows in a dwelling have been greatly increased and the ventilation facilities of the bedrooms vastly improved.

Along the lines of better ventilation has followed the two most important innovations of the last decade, the sun parlor and sleeping porch. In the beautiful, large spacious farm home shown here both of these features are prominent. A large screened-in sun porch on the main floor provides a wonderful recreation center for the family when the warm weather becomes uncomfortable. In the winter this same porch can be glazed in and made into a very valuable room.

A wide attractive driveway leads the way to this charming farm home. It passes under a portecochere covered by an extension of the roof porch supported by concrete block and wood pillars. The front porch extends the width of the house and is approached by stairs on the drive and at the end of the main walk. The front entrance opens into a small reception hall with a handy closet for outside clothes. This room in turn leads through a wide open doorway into the living room on one side. This room is a very comfortable center for the family. 19 by 13 feet 6 inches with a great open fireplace providing a wealth of warmth and cheer on the cold and chilly nights. Plenty of light comes from triple window in front and small side windows.

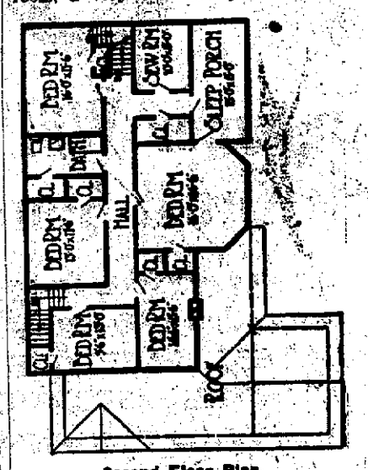

First Floor Plan.

Another open doorway to the rear brings us into view of the dining room, an equally spacious and cheerful room, 16 by 22 feet, extending to one side in the form of a large bay with four windows. It opens at one side into a hall, at the other into the kitchen and screened porch which is at the far corner of the first floor. This screen porch is also connected with the kitchen and can be used very conveniently for breakfast or other meals to save much work for the housewife.

The kitchen is modeled along practical lines, being small, condensed and complete. It is only 10 by 10 feet. Immediately adjacent is the washroom, a very essential part of the farm home because of the work it saves and its general convenience for the men who come in from the field.

The kitchen is connected with a small bedroom by a hall which opens into a lavatory. This bedroom is very handy for the men who have to get up very early in the morning and who do not wish to disturb the rest of the family.

The sleeping quarters are located on the second floor and consist of five bedrooms and a large sleeping porch, 18 by 8 feet. The bedrooms vary in size from the smallest, 9 feet 6 inches by 13 feet, to the largest, 16 feet by 16 feet 6 inches. This large room is over the dining room and gets the benefit of the wonderful lighting and ventilation afforded by the large bay windows. All of the rooms are exceptionally well lighted and airy, and have plenty of closet space. In one corner is a small sewing room, 10 by 8 feet.

While this home is large and rather pretentious, it is by no means an exception, and is indicative of the type of homes farmers are building for their families. They are demanding the best of comforts because they realize that is the touchstone to family harmony and instrumental in keeping the children on the farm after they grow up and appreciate the good things of home life.

WORLD MENACED BY TYPHUS

Dreaded Fever in Poland and Galicia and It Is Feared It Will Spread.

The severe epidemic of typhus fever now raging in Poland and Galicia must be regarded as an international danger, and there can be very little doubt that if it is not checked in the new stricken areas it will spread westward, says the Medical Record. It has been conclusively shown that the infection is carried by lice. The principal carrier is the body louse, which anchors itself in the underclothing next to the skin and feeds twice a day. The only remedy against the parasite is the immediate baking or disinfection of clothing.

Typhus is essentially a winter disease and occurs most frequently in temperate climates, the obvious explanation being that its development is enhanced by overcrowding, bad ventilation and close contact in dwellings. The mortality is almost invariably high among doctors and nurses. Our greatest safeguard is that typhus is now thoroughly understood, while precautions can be applied without difficulty.

Cumulative Funeral Services.

The custom (in the mountain districts of the South) is to have a funeral preached every two or three years for all the people who have died during that time. Each one is buried at the time of his death, but the preaching is reserved for a later day, when it is convenient for more people and more preachers to get there. Sometimes a man will be married again, and his second wife will be one of the chief mourners at his first wife's funeral preaching. This custom is dying out to some extent. The burying and preaching together are becoming more common.—Irene Hudson in the Atlantic Monthly.

unconscious. Commandeering an automobile he rushed them to the General hospital at Paterson.

Setterfield's case was diagnosed at once as "extremely critical." For two days his life hung in balance. As the little fellow accompanied by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Setterfield, walked out of the hospital, the surgeons who attended him shared his happiness.

Though William, his cousin, was less seriously wounded, he did not leave the hospital, being still confined to bed.

ACCUSE FATHER OF FOUR MURDERS

burned their bodies in the home. And three other deaths, it is suspected, may be laid up against him.

But the most atrocious crime charged against Schutte is the murder of Joseph Ball, his wife and eighteen-year-old son, Jacob, in December, 1915. The charge has been made by the man's own son, Julius Schutte, who fled from home after the crime and enlisted in the navy in hopes of forgetting the shocking scene he witnessed on a cold December night.

Murder of Ball Family.

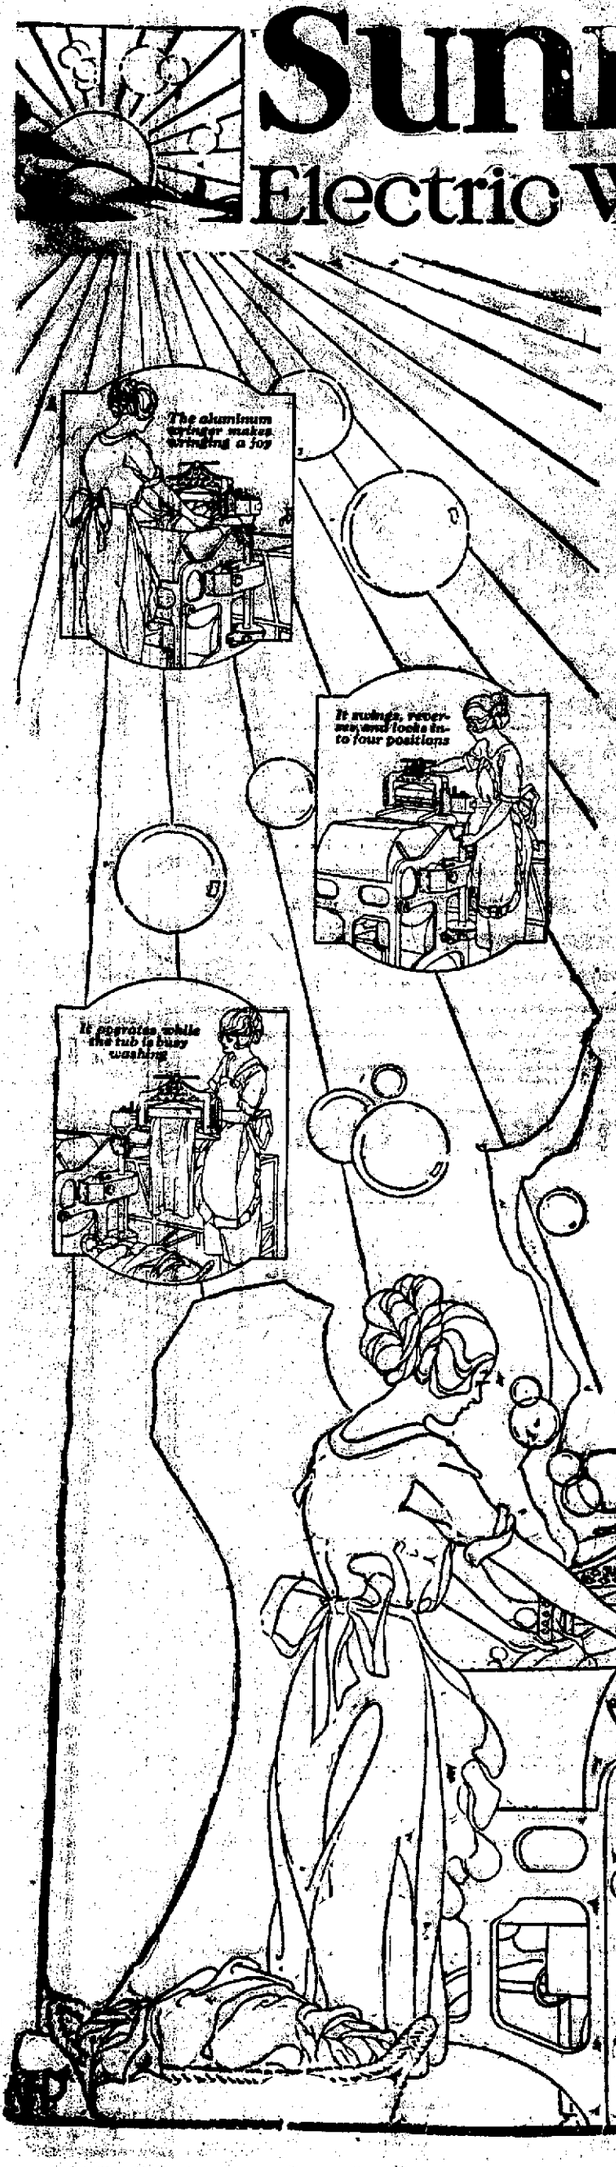

Joseph Ball was a Hungarian who had Anglicized his name. He lived in a little shack in a valley back of the Schutte home. On December 11, 1915, Julius says his father aroused him from sleep and ordered him to dress and accompany him. When they were ready to leave the house the father handed him a gun and carried one himself. Outside the door Schutte picked up a can of kerosene and a bag of shavings. Arrived close by the Ball shack the father ordered Julius to take up a position 25 feet from the door and shoot anyone who might leave the building. Then with the kerosene can and the shavings the old man started fires at each end of the shack and when the terrified inmates rushed out shot them down. One by one he carried the bodies within the shack, piled them one on the other and smiled as he watched them burn.

There had been bad blood between Schutte and Joseph Ball.

Three other deaths are now being investigated, one of them at least a plain murder.

CHAINS FOR TARDY MOTORISTS

The South Park police of Chicago have just been equipped with chains and when they find an automobile has been parked over thirty minutes, in violation of the city ordinance, they take one of the chains they are carrying and lock the car to one of the pretty electroliers that adorn the boulevard. The officers leave their card which informs the owner that he is on the "hook" and will be glad to release the car—after arranging for the owner to appear in court next morning. The photograph shows a policeman chaining up one of the machines that has overstayed its limit.

GOOD BRAKES OF BIG IMPORTANCE

They Are One of Most Excellent Forms of Guarding Against All Kinds of Accidents.

METHOD OF CURBING ENGINE

Emergency or Hand Brake Primarily Is to Hold Car When Standing and Secondarily to Use if Other Brake Gives Way.

By H. CLIFFORD BROKAW, Technical Director West Side Y. M. C. A. Automobile Schools, New York City.

Better have good brakes on your car than an engine, if you have to choose between the two, for the brakes are the best form of accident insurance you can have. This indicates the relative importance of the two car features. You might have the highest type of engine with unlimited power under the hood, but if you haven't also some means of curbing your high stepper and tethering it at will you are in for it. "Whoa" won't stop it either. You might better be driving an untamed broncho of the plains. The engine will get you there, it is true, but if there be no means of stopping you may go too eternally far.

The car has two sets of brakes—emphasizing the importance—and occasionally a car has more. The emergency or hand brake consists of a brake band operating within a drum on each rear wheel, connected by rods and levers to the hand lever, which has a ratchet and pawl so that it may be locked in position. This brake primarily is to hold the car when standing and secondarily to use in running if the other brake gives way or for alternating on long hills.

Operation of Foot Brake.

The foot brake called running or service brake, is operated by a pedal with a spring to release it when pressure on the pedal is removed, and is connected by other rods and levers to brake bands operating on the outside of the rear wheel drums or occasionally upon a separate drum on the propeller shaft. The latter gives greater breaking power, because of the rear axle gearing leverage back of the brake and the second drum helps prevent overheating on long hills. But this type brake does put a severe strain on the rear axle gears.

Both brakes should be kept in such condition that either will stop the car quickly. Do not let one set remain out of order just because you know the other is all right. The other might go bad just when needed.

Brake bands are lined with non-burning friction material, usually an asbestos fabric, fastened to the steel bands by copper rivets, the heads of which are counter sunk deep into the lining, to keep the heads from contact with the drum. If the lining is allowed to wear thin the copper rivet heads score the drum into shallow grooves, lessening the braking power. Such must be turned true on a lathe if they are to be worth much for braking purposes.

Renew Brake Lining.

Equally important is the renewal of the brake lining before it is worn thin enough to expose the rivets to friction. Better have this done at the service station. It is a particular and tedious job. It is possible, however, to get the right size linings and proper rivets at almost any supply house. Remove the brake bands, punch out the old rivets, noticing how they were put in and go to it. Remember that the rivet heads must be countersunk deep into the lining and every rivet set up tight. It requires patience but can be done by the novice.

The brake lining [illegible] lubrication is not desirable, but every other place on the brake and linkage where there is motion should be lubricated regularly according to the manufacturer's lubrication chart, and be cleaned likewise. There is considerable wear to the clevises and pins; they may be renewed for a few cents and should not be allowed to wear to the danger point; besides, worn linkage rattles.

DRAG DISABLED CARS WITH RIGID TOW-BAR

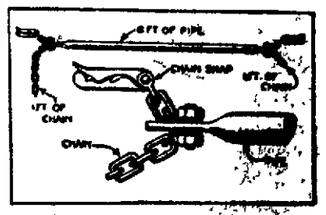

Piece of Rope or Tire Chain Are Not Suitable.

In Case of Sudden Stop, Towed Machine Runs Into Rear End of Pilot and Both Vehicles Are Unnecessarily Injured.

Invariably when an automobile has broken down in the streets or on the road, the owner of a small garage will send the first available car, equipped with a piece of rope or tire chain that he may have on hand, to the scene of the breakdown to tow in the derelict. The driver of the towing car has frequently an exciting time, especially when it is necessary for him to tow the broken-down car through city streets with much traffic. When he is compelled to make a sudden stop, the towed car will often run into the rear end of the pilot and both cars are damaged.

All this can be avoided if the owner of the garage is provided with a rigid tow-bar for dragging the disabled vehicle through the streets. A rigid bar is by far the best means, as it keeps the two cars at a fixed distance from each other. Regardless of the conditions of the brakes of the disabled car it will come to a stop when the towing-car stops.

In the accompanying illustration a tow-bar is shown which can be made from a six-foot section of one-inch wrought-iron pipe, two short pieces of chain, two bolts, and two tire-chain snaps. The pipe is flattened at each end, and chains and snaps, are attached by bolts through drilled holes in the flattened ends. If no iron pipe is available, a correspondingly heavier wooden bar may be used to the ends of which the chains and harness hooks are attached.—C. A. Luers in Popular Science Monthly.
